THE ALABAMA CLAIMS.

Discussions at Washington—Minister Curtis's Views—The Famous Dispatch of Secretary Seward to Minister Adams Accompanying the Claims in 1866—Senator Sumner Declares His Argument in the Interest of Peace.

Special Dispatches to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Friday, June 4.

When, to-day, the attention of a high official was called to recent statements relative to the present condition of the Alabama negotiations, and the views of the Administration on the subject, the criticism pronounced on them was that they contained "much that was imaginative and much that was untrue." As stated in these dispatches nearly three weeks ago, Mr. MOTLEY has been instructed to negotiate, if possible, a consular and a naturalization treaty, and to represent to the English Government that the views of the Administration are of a pacific character, and that nothing is further from the present intentions of the people of the United States and of the Cabinet than an appeal to arms. The Alabama question was talked over in the recent interviews which Minister CURTIS had with the President. He represents the President as commending the argument of Mr. SUMNER and indorsing many of its propositions. The views of Minister MOTLEY and of Mr. SUMNER are known to be identical on the question. General GRANT, before the date of his inauguration, said that the settlement of the Alabama question was not one of mere dollars and cents. The Johnson-Clarendon protocol was little more than that which General GRANT thus condemned. Mr. SEWARD, as is well known, was anxious to settle the question before his retirement from office, and hence his consent to the Johnson-Clarendon protocol, in which the question of belligerency, which has now come to the surface, again was waived. The late Secretary was of the opinion at the time, that the agreement of England to pay on arbitration, was as full a confession of wrong as she could in all probability be ever induced to make. But in 1868 he was quite as emphatic as Mr. SUMNER in his recent speech, and in the October of that year wrote as follows to Mr. ADAMS, then Minister to England:

"When the insurrection began, the United States believed themselves to hold a position and to exert a moral influence and influence fully equal of any other nation; and it was from that foreign intervention in behalf of the insurgents, even to the extent only of recognizing them as a belligerent, must directly, and more or less completely, derogate from the just and cherished influence of the republic. It was foreseen that, should the insurgents receive recognizance, aid and support in any degree from Great Britain, the insurrection might be ripened under such influences to a social war, which would involve the life of the nation itself. The United States did not fail to give warning to Her Majesty's Government that the American people could not be expected to submit without resistance to the endurance of any of these great evils through the means of any failure of Great Britain to preserve the established relations of peace, amity and good neighborhood with the United States. The earnest remonstrance thus made sent to the United States to have failed to receive just and adequate consideration. While yet the civil war was understood and the insurgents were without any navy, army, military force or a treasury, and long before they succeeded to have a fleet, or to put either armed ship, or even a merchant vessel upon the sea, Her Majesty's Government, acting precipitately, as we have always complained, proclaimed the belligerent rights of insurgent power and conceded to them the advantages and privileges of that character, and this raised them, in regard to the prosecution of an unlawful armed insurrection, to an equality with the United States. This Government has not denied that it was within the sovereign authority of Great Britain to assume this attitude. Yet, on the other hand, it insisted in the beginning, and has continually insisted, that the assumption of that attitude unnecessarily and prematurely, would be an injurious proceeding, for which Great Britain would immediately come to have a full responsibility to justify it, or to render reparation and indemnity. The United States remain of the opinion that the proclamation referred to has not been justified on any ground of either necessity or legal right, and that, therefore, it was wrongful in Great Britain, a departure from the obligations of existing treaties, and without sanction of the law of nations. Upon a candid review of the history of the rebellion, it is believed that Great Britain will not deny that a very large number of the Queen's subjects combined themselves and operated as active allies with the insurgents, aided them with supplies, arms, munitions, men and many ships of war. The chief reply which Her Majesty's Government has made to this complaint, has been that they apprehended inconveniences from being involved in the contest, unless they should declare themselves neutral; and further, that they did in fact put forth all the efforts to prevent aggressions by British subjects which the laws of Great Britain permitted."

This was the celebrated dispatch which accompanied the list of our claims against Great Britain, and which, according to the information in the knowledge of Mr. SEWARD, was so studiously kept from the English public, and even from Parliament, till concealment was no longer possible. The question of the accountability of England for issuing the proclamation of neutrality, was covered in high-sounding phrases in the Johnson-Clarendon protocol. The English law Lords have declared that had it not been for that proclamation every ship built for the Confederates in English dock-yards would have been a "pirate." Precisely how the proclamation grievance is to be settled is at present a matter of doubt, but that some settlement of it will be demanded is certain. An eminent Englishman, in a recent letter to a Senator here, says that Lord STANLEY, when ALEXANDER H. STEPHENS announced that the sun of the South was the foundation of a confederation on the corner-stone of slavery, should have offered to the United States such ships, men and arms as could be spared, as he had precedent for doing in the case of Hungary and Portugal years before. Mr. SUMNER says his argument was made in the interest of peace, and that with England he would have "more that peace"—more even than concord. That he is opposed to the acquisition of more territory, as asserted by some, is absurd, in view of his argument favoring the Alaska purchase.

The Latest London Newspaper Editorials on the Question.

LONDON, Friday, June 4.

The London newspapers are still discussing the relations existing between England and the United States. The Standard says that the conduct of America in the matter of the late treaty, in the lapse of time may be forgotten, but at the present it is hardly fair to be linked to feelings of just indignation and resentment.

The Post says that a new attempt for the settlement of the Alabama claims must come from America, and hopes that due precautions will be taken to secure England against accepting a treaty almost with humility, which will be rejected at last with contumely.

The Alabama Question in the House of Lords.

LONDON, Friday, June 4.

In the House of Lords this evening STRATHEDEN DE REDCLYFFE moved for a copy of the Alabama treaty. He said the Government had shown the greatest conciliation in its desire to maintain peace, and trusted that when negotiations were resumed between the two countries that a calmer spirit than that which succeeded Mr. SUMNER's speech would show its influence, and that the Americans would feel that there were demands that England could not entertain. He hoped that such negotiations would place their relations upon a satisfactory footing, and all would rejoice if that end could be attained by the able man whom all admire.

Lord CLARENDON regretted the unavoidable delay in furnishing the papers called for. He traced the history of the negotiations, and said that the House of Commons was not entitled to assume that the majority of the Senate and people of the United States supported Mr. SUMNER's demands. He believed that without intervention the sympathetic feelings and good sense of America would ultimately prevail. The friendly feelings of the United States were reciprocated. He would shrink from no sacrifice to maintain peace, but the National honor must be maintained. He was not aware of the nature of Mr. MOTLEY's instructions, but he hoped what had occurred would promote and not hinder negotiations, as the terms that England was willing to concede, or must refuse, were well known.

DOMINION OF CANADA.

The Terms by which Newfoundland can enter the Union—Debate on the Annexation Question in the Nova Scotia House.

OTTAWA, CANADA, Friday, June 4.

The Newfoundland delegates have come to terms with the Dominion Government as to the considerations to be received by Newfoundland on entering the Union. The terms will be submitted to the people of Newfoundland at the time of the general election next fall, and on the assembling of the Legislature in January the question will have to be confirmed.

HALIFAX, N. S., Friday, June 4.

In the House of Assembly last night, Mr. MURRAY, of Pictou, said that he was unavoidably absent on Tuesday, and would ask another day to be appointed for the discussion of the annexation resolution. Hon. Mr. WILKINS, the Attorney-General, said that owing to the late period of the session it would prevent the resolution from receiving proper attention. It should be postponed until the next session. He intended to propose further constitutional measures to get out of the Confederation, and until they were tried it would be wrong to take revolutionary steps. He hoped there would never be occasion the Nova Scotia to change its allegiance. He did not expect the Government or the Parliament of England to grant a repeal, but he expected the higher Courts in the realm to release Nova Scotia from the Confederation by declaring the Union act illegal. After further discussion, it was arranged by the Speaker, taking Mr. MURRAY's resolution as a notice, that it would be moved on Monday.

Southern Railroads—Movements in Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, Friday, June 4.

The City Council to-day unanimously adopted the report of the Committee on Southern Railroads. The report recommends the speedy construction of the Road authorized by FERGUSON's bill, Chattanooga to be the southern terminus. Saturday, June 26, is the day set for submitting the question to the popular vote. There is no opposition worthy of mention. The Attorney-General of Ohio will at once bring the constitutionality of FERGUSON's bill before the Supreme Court on a writ of quo warranto.

THE NAVAL ACADEMY.

The Reconstruction Excitement—Presence of Distinguished Persons—The Boat Race and Naval Sights—The Ball.

ANNAPOLIS, Friday, June 4.

The United States steamer Tallapoosa, Commander RALPH CHANDLER, arrived here this morning at 8:30 o'clock, from Washington, with a distinguished party, consisting of the President, accompanied by Mrs. GRANT, Miss NELLIE and Master GRANT, Miss NELLIE and Miss LILLIE SHERMAN, Secretary COX, Attorney-General HOAR, Postmaster-General CRESWELL, Assistant Secretary of State DAVIS and wife, and others. The distinguished party were received with a salute from the United States ships Macedonian, Saranac and Jamestown, now on duty at this station, and as soon as the Tallapoosa came to an anchor, Admiral POR TER went aboard and escorted the President and his family to his residence. A large number of strangers are in the city, and the grounds of the Academy have been thronged during the day. The majority of the visitors are relatives and friends of the cadets at the Academy. A great many ladies are present. At 11 o'clock this forenoon a dress parade of the midshipmen took place. Shortly afterward Judge HUMPHREYS, of Alabama, one of the visitors, delivered the address to the graduating class, numbering seventy-eight members. The President then delivered the diplomas to the graduates. The appearance of the Midshipmen, as they stood drawn up in battalion in the Academy grounds, was very imposing and elicited the most favorable comment. Their uniform consisted of white pants, dark blue jackets and white caps. They were exercised in the manual of arms, using the Spencer carbine, and gave abundant evidency of proficiency.

The boat race this afternoon between the first and second classes of the Academy started at 3:30. The distance was seven miles; three miles and a half up and around a buoy and return. The boat of the first, or graduating class, was a six-oared cedar shell, and of the second class a four-oared paper shell. The stroke oars were respectively were midshipmen GARVIN and WOOD. The start from the buoy of the dock from the Naval Academy was fair, and the race was hotly contested until after passing the round buoy. Midway between this and the starting point the boat of the first class was swamped, and her competitors coming in ahead were decided the winners and awarded the flag, which was presented by Admiral PORTER. Time, 31 minutes 42 seconds. The swamping of the first-class boat was caused by a high wind and a rough sea. There is a difference of opinion as to which boat was ahead at the time of the swamping, and at present the question is undecided. The contest was most exciting, and was witnessed by an immense concourse, among whom were President GRANT, members of the Cabinet, Admiral PORTER, other distinguished officers of the navy, the Board of Visitors, and many ladies of their respective families, and thousands of others.

After the boat race there was a mock naval fight between Midshipmen KIMBALL and MAY, of the graduating class, each commanding and manning a dug-out with a crew of one man as caveman or sculler. The weapons of the contestants were padded lances. The boats were placed about twenty yards apart, and at the word of command started for each other. At the first round MAY went overboard, but soon got in his boat again. In the second round KIMBALL was knocked overboard, and in attempting to get in his boat upset and sank her, when he was gallantly rescued by MAY. The crew (the two scullers) swam ashore.

The ball, to-night, given by the officers and midshipmen of the Naval Academy, in honor of Mrs. Admiral PORTER, is now going on. The dancing-room is the old battery, an immense oval building recently converted into a gymnasium.

During the past week the necessary work to convert it into a ball-room has been done, and to-night it presented the appearance of a fairy palace. The interior of the room is ninety-six feet in diameter, hexagonal shape. The walls are beautified with Chinese and other decorations, and flags of the various nations, with appropriate mottoes. The ceiling is painted sky blue, representing the heavens brilliant with planets and stars. At 10:30 o'clock the ball-room was lighted and opened, and soon an immense throng filled the entrances leading thereto. No particular order was observed in entering the room, but at the appearance of the President and other high officers, the Naval Academy Band struck up "Admiral PORTER'S Grand March," composed for the occasion by Professor SCHUCH, when a general promenade ensued. This over, a quadrille was formed, composed as follows: The President and Mrs. PORTER, Secretary BOUTWELL and Miss LILLIE SHERMAN, Secretary CRESWELL and Miss MINNIE SHERMAN, General SHERMAN and Miss BOUTWELL, the niece of the Secretary, Admiral PORTER and Mrs. GRANT, General MICHLER and Miss TUNNICLIFF, of Washington; General RAMSEY and Mrs. General MICHLER, and Colonel and Mrs. DAYTON. This was led off by General GRANT and Mrs. PORTER at the head of the quadrille, with Admiral PORTER and Mrs. GRANT as their vis-a-vis. The music was the "La Belle Helene Quadrille." After the quadrille the dancing became general. Mrs. GRANT was dressed in blue and white changeable silk, panier of French muslin and valen ciennes lace, caps to correspond and and full set of diamonds. Mrs. Admiral PORTER was dressed in white satin with three flounces looped with blue satin pannier covered with point lace, wreathed with multiflora roses, head elaborately dressed with ringlets, and a full set of diamonds. The display of ladies' dresses in general has never been excelled. The President and Secretaries present were dressed in plain black suits, while the officers of the army and navy were in uniforms. In the dancing-room the crowd was so great that there was scarcely room for the dancing. The promenade outside and around the main room was filled, and hundreds are promenading through the Academy grounds, illuminated with thousands of variegated Chinese lights and gas-jets. The lamps hang from the branches of trees, from artificial arches and frames of every conceivable shape. From the roof of the new large building on the northern portion of the grounds, a magnesia light throws its beams over the entire grounds. Among the many distinguished gentlemen present is Mr. THORNTON, the English Minister. With one exception the full Board of Visitors are here.

Massachusetts Railroads—Proposed Additional Powers to the Boston and Albany Road.

BOSTON, Friday, June 4.

The Legislative Committee on Railroads have under consideration a bill to allow the Boston and Albany Railroad Company to increase its capital stock $3,000,000, and to extend its track from this city across Fore Point Channel, Boston wharf, and the land of the Boston, Hartford and Erie Railroad Company in deep water. Authority is also given to the Company to build branch or other roads in Worcester, Hampden, Hampshire or Berkshire counties; to build and maintain an additional track from Boston to Worcester; to take stock lands or date as may be required for depot purposes, and to build wharves as required; to purchase the whole or any part of the road built by the Boston, Hartford and Erie Company between the Brookline Branch Railroad and Woonsocket, R. I.; to purchase or lease the Mystic River Railroad, the Marginal Freight Railway, the South Boston Freight Railway, and to unite and consolidate with the Albany and West Stockbridge Railroad, and with the Hudson and Boston Railroad Corporation.

Seal Skins from Alaska—Reported Burning Volcano on an Island in the Pacific—General Thomas.

SAN FRANCISCO, Thursday, June 3.

General THOMAS to-day issued his order assuming the command of the Military Division of the Pacific, vice General HALLECK, transferred to the Division of the South.

Within a few days about 40,000 fine seal skins, valued at $600,000, consigned to the successors of the Russian American Fur Company, have been been received from Alaska. It is stated that many of these skins were taken from female seals and pups in violation of the law. Other shipments have been made direct to Honolulu, and thence to Europe.

The first sleeping cars seen in California arrived at Sacramento to-day from the East.

The Captain of the ship National Eagle from Hong Kong, reports observing, May 17, an active volcano on an island in latitude 31° 16' north, longitude 128° 50' east. The island is about five miles from Smith's Island. The vessel passed midway between the islands, and, when abreast of the volcano, they could hear it roaring fearfully. A dense mass of smoke and steam ascended from the island.

The Choller Mining Company has declared a dividend of $15 per share, payable on the 8th inst.

The steamer China sailed to-day for Hong Kong, via Yokohama, taking out $1,170,000 treasure, of which $924,000 was for Hong Kong, $200,000 for Yokohama, $175,000 for Hiogo, $64,000 for Shanghae. She also took $86,000 worth of merchandise.

THE REFORMED CHURCH.

Meeting of the Synod at Philadelphia—Communications Received.

PHILADELPHIA, Friday, June 4.

This was the third day of the Synod of the General Reformed Church of America. The Synod was called to order at 9 o'clock. The President, Rev. Mr. PITCHER, led in prayer. The hour having arrived for resuming business, communications were received from J. F. HARTLEY, of New-York, with reference to declining the invitation given to the Synod by the Pope to participate in the Roman Conference next Fall; from the corresponding delegate to the Evangelical Lutheran Church, held in Washington, D. C., on the 20th of May, 1869; from the delegate to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, which was held in the City of New-York, of similar import to the ones given above; from the Committee of the Synod of the Secession Church of Holland, which will meet on the 15th of June at Middleburg, Province of Zealand, Michigan, earnestly requesting the present Synod to appoint a deputation for the furtherance of mutual intercourse of the fellowship of Saints, referred; and one in regard to the act to change the corporate title of the General Synod of the Reformed Protestant Dutch Church to that of the General Church in America. These were severally referred.

On motion a committee of three ministers and two laymen was appointed to attend the National Council of Evangelical Denominations in the United States, proposed at the last session of the Synod.

The Committee on Correspondence asked that Rev. Dr. HIGBEE, the delegate from the German Reformed Church, be heard this morning. The request was granted, and Rev. Dr. HIGBEE then made an address in regard to the union of churches, to which the President responded in a neat and appropriate manner.

Rev. Dr. J. M. FERRIS, Secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions, addressed the Synod, and stated that the Board still had an indebtedness of $81,000. The Board had determined to dispense with debt, and their efforts had been somewhat blessed. The sum of $17,000 had been contributed for missionary purposes, and in four years missionary residences had been erected, chapels had been put up, and a building for a girls' seminary had been built.

A report was received from the committee appointed by the last Synod to visit Holland, Michigan, giving a few facts in regard to the Theological Seminary in that section. Referred to the Committee on Professorships.

Rev. J. WIMAN, Corresponding Secretary of the Board of Domestic Missions, addressed the Synod upon matters connected with the written report read last evening.

The Synod then adjourned until 3 o'clock.

At the afternoon session the Corresponding Secretary of the Board of Education addressed the Synod, and was followed by Rev. JOHN A. LAMPLUGH. Rev. ABEL GOESLER was recognized as a delegate from the Old School Presbyterian Church, and Rev. Dr. SCHMUCKER, from the Lutheran. Rev. Dr. DIXON, Chairman of the Committee on Supplying Pulpits, reported that arrangements had been made for to-morrow.

The Synod then adjourned.

An interesting incident on Thursday afternoon was, that while the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was being administered, a dove flew into the church and flew around for several minutes, and subsequently remained quiet while the sacrament was being partaken of. The dove is the Heavenly emblem of the Holy Ghost.

The Landing of the Fillibusters—Sentiment in Havana—Accounts of Engagements—Strange Developments—Difficulties of a Consul—Resignation of General Dulce—Death of a Hero.

From Our Own Correspondent.

HAVANA, Saturday, May 29, 1869.

"They've come at last, they have landed!" was the expression in the mouth at every Cuban sympathizing with the revolution, on Sunday and Monday last. The fillibusters had landed. Spanish-like, no mention was made of the facts officially, until every man, woman and child in this blessed City of Havana had been enriched with several very highly seasoned versions of the same affair. The official account of the landing of the fillibusters, however, reads thus:

Commandancia-General of the Eastern Department, Section 1:

The Commander-of-Arms at Mayari, under date of yesterday, informs the Commanding General of the following: Having received positive information that 100 adventurers recruited by the revolutionary Junta in New-York had landed in the Bay of Taspa, I ordered the valiant Captain Don AUGUSTIN MONO Y VIEDO, with 150 men of this garrison, to sally forth and give them a decided whipping. They did meet the enemy in a wood, three leagues and attacked them with the bayonet, driving them from the first house, and killing sixty of them with the cold steel, (a machete,) taking seven pieces of artillery, three flags, embarrassed by loads of baggage, and needle guns and other effects. The command, according to his numerical superiority, received, at the outset, fire for over four hours, keeping up a lively fire on our troops, whose ammunition now giving out, retired in the greatest order, without having been troubled in the least by the enemy. According to trustworthy information, the loss of the enemy consists in sixty killed and 150 wounded, and our loss, although a sensible one, includes four killed and sixteen wounded. All of which is published by order of the Commanding General for the information of the loyal citizens of this city.

By order, the Chief of Staff,

ANTONIO CANALEJO.

CUBA, 18th May, 1869.

Kikiriki! Kikiriki! the Spanish rooster has crowed officially. But now to give the additional news as published by the journals, and then to print the truth and expose the shameless official bombast. The Fresnes says:

"On the night of the 14th to the 17th instant, from 400 to 500 with eight pieces of artillery, of which number there were 150 under Colonel Ramon. The Spanish steamer Guatemala, from Cuba, for Mayari, arrived there the day after the landing had been effected, and left immediately on learning what had happened to advise the authorities and warn the troops. As she out she met the steamer Marcella, which immediately fired on thrice by the insurgents, the shots causing some damage to the hull and rigging. The war steamer then fired in the bushes on shore, although no rebelde could be seen. The garrison of Mayari, 150 men, hearing of what had taken place, sallied forth in search of the enemy, but had to make a detour of five leagues by a forced march. Hardly had they caught sight of the landing party, when at the sound of the cornet, they made a rush upon the rebels with the bayonet and captured six, which they turned and had against those who had been firing on them before.

The flag which the insurgents had flying over the battery, bore the inscription, "To the valiant liberating sons of Cuba." It was captured. It contains other lady embroideries, to present a flag to some other liberators, but be take care, that they be less swift-footed than those at Mayari.

On the 20th inst., the steamer Guatemala carried 120 men to Mayari, and the Marcella, which had gone to Gibara, 200 men, with troops, together with further reinforcements brought by the men-of-war Africa, Andalusia, and Vasco Nunez. The Rebelion, of Cienfuegos, adds, that the inscription on the captured flag stated that it was presented to the Riflemen of Liberty by Mrs. EMILIA CASAROVA DE VILLAVERDE, of New-York."

These were the official and semi-official accounts published in relation to this affair, and from the tenor of the official report and its bombastic style, it was easily seen that a colored gentleman was once more in the wood-pile. The United States man-of-war, Narragansett, from Nuevitas, brought the following account from Spanish and other sources, differing materially from the above account. It says:

"The steamers Arago and Ferri brought 700 men, which the Ferri carried inside of the Bay while the Arago remained outside, landing them at Nipe Bay, 120 miles east of Nuevitas, on the night of the 18th, together with eighteen field pieces. Immediately after landing, the insurgents threw up intrenchments, and mounted eight of their guns, there being no troops to prevent either move. The man-of-war Moniteur entered the Bay, discovered the encampment and immediately opened fire, but steamed away in great haste when aware that the insurgents had artillery, and that they knew how to handle it, every shot entering the Moniteur, and playing havoc with her hull and rigging. The Moniteur returned on the following day, with the gunboat Ayfer and 200 men, who disembarked under the protection of the ship's guns, and stormed the entrenchments, capturing the guns. They were, however, immediately dislodged by the fillibusters, who resumed possession of the guns, and drove the troops back to the boats, killing, according to official information, forty men, and wounding seventy-six, who were carried to Santiago de Cuba."

THE SALVATOR EXPEDITION.

The Salvator expedition from Key West via Nassau, consisting of ninety-eight men, was landed without trouble at Nuevas Grandes, fifteen miles east of Nuevitas. Men and ammunition have already reached Quesada. The Captain and crew of the steamer have returned to Key West, plentifully provided with funds, the steamer having been seized at Nassau for a violation of the Passengers act. Two English men-of-war have been cruising along the coast in search of the Salvator, but she evaded not only their search, but also the search of the Spanish cruisers. So far three expeditions have been landed, and several more are expected within the next two weeks.

The Pelayo, I learn, has just arrived from Nuevitas, bringing about one hundred wounded, one captured cannon and another captured flag. Heavy fighting had been going on between the troops and fillibusters at Manati, and with the insurgents at Mayari and other places. Ten days of the Dulce's brutal soldier appear to have gone by, and we may yet read in the estimate of that journal that more than four or five soldiers have been killed.

QUEER DEVICE-FORGERY.

On Sunday morning last the street corners in the business part of the city were found covered with a proclamation, which, literally translated, read as follows:

"I, ROSALES HERNANDEZ, declare to the entire world that MARCIANO RECONDA, FERMIN CALVO and Secretary DIAZ were in plot to liberate the political prisoners, going to Fernando Po. In consideration therefor they have to receive a goodly amount of $1,000 each, and, in case special arrangement entered into with RECONDA was, that he was to receive $20,000 in case the Provedor de Pozo did not reach its destination."

ROSALES HERNANDEZ is the nephew of LOPEZ AYALA, the Colonial Minister. The parties accused are high officials of the Dulce Government, and were formerly courtiers at the Court of Her Majesty Queen ISABELLA. On Sunday a plot was also discovered compromising the priest of Manzanillo, who goes to Spain to-morrow as a prisoner. This priest made himself famous by his attacks on the Sisters, and it is supposed that this is merely a trick of the Bishop to obtain revenge.

DISCUSSION AMONG THE SEAMAKERS.

The Spaniards are positively disunited. There are several parties in existence among them, who are fighting among themselves, and making mutual charges of cowardice, dishonesty and lack of patriotism. One party, represented by the Voz de Cuba, and backed up by the volunteers, is now engaged in open war with that part of the Cuban Government represented by DULCE, who, on Thursday issued an order for Messrs. GONSALO CASTAÑEDA and SIXTRES VARY, Colonel of the Volunteer Artillery, Ex-Judge of the Supreme Court and editors of the Voz de Cuba, PEREZ CALVO, the successor of the famous MORALES LEMUS, as counsellor of the Administration, the Judge of the Supreme Court, DURAN CEPERO and that celebrated gent, the Ex-Consul MIJARES, to hold themselves in readiness to take passage to Spain on the 26th inst. All these gentlemen are bitter enemies of DULCE, who accuses them of being enemies to the nation. They are the principal causes of the extreme hatred existing between Spaniards and Cubans, by their impolitic expressions and writings, and are therefore hindrances to an early conclusion of the war. But these gentlemen are protected by the volunteers and have refused to go unless compelled to do so by force. It is not only doubtful that any volunteer will lend himself to do the work of removal, but on the contrary it may be that all will oppose any attempt made by the Captain-General to place the men aboard a vessel—an attempt which, in all probability, will result in a conflict. The question at issue is simply whether DULCE or the volunteers are the governing power.

DIFFICULTIES OF A CONSUL.

Mr. ISAAC STONE, the American Consular agent at Remedios, who fills the same position for the British Government, is not permitted to display either flag, the Captain-General having decided that only Consuls are entitled to that privilege. Mr. STONE fears to display the flag lest the volunteers and troops commit some act of violence. But if Mr. STONE were not generally known as a sympathizer with the revolutionists, he would undoubtedly have no fears on that score. His son-in-law, Mr. VALLS, always talked in favor of the revolution and its adherents, though cautioned by his friends against it. The Government undertook to arrest him, but Mr. VALLS got wind of its intentions and took refuge in the Consulate, where he remained two months, until the Governor of Remedios in person went there and demanded his surrender, whereupon Mr. STONE delivered him up under protest. Mr. VALLS claimed to be an American citizen, but produced no proofs to that effect, his papers of citizenship arriving only a few days ago. Mr. STONE informed the Governor of this fact, but that gentleman refused to respect the case as the papers had been sent to Havana, and the affair referred to General DULCE. The Spanish officials are undoubtedly very overbearing and arbitrary in their mode of procedure, but if Mr. VALLS had refrained from any interference in the affairs of the country this difficulty would not have occurred. The number of persons claiming to be American citizens has materially decreased since. If any American, either naturalized or foreign, takes active sides in this question he does not deserve any protection, at least until the Cubans are recognized. The many persons reported to be seriously waiting at Nuevitas and Puerto Principe has also been exaggerated. The only persons at all desirous of leaving the island were Dr. BLAKE and wife and another lady from Puerto Principe, whose husband was an official in the rebel service, and even these persons were not ready to depart when the Narragansett returned to Havana, which proves that they are not in such dire distress after all.

RESIGNATION OF GENERAL DULCE.

DULCE'S resignation was forwarded by cable on Thursday last, and it is expected that the home Government will, on accepting it, appoint immediately his successor. DULCE cannot be blamed for resigning, and ought to have done it long ago. Ridiculed by the Cubans whom he tried to favor, hated and despised by a formidable faction of the Spaniards, his orders disregarded and his body a source of continual suffering, with the threats of the volunteers hanging over his head, his position has been anything but a pleasant one since his arrival here. His talents lie principally in the hands of his Secretaries and the hangers-on at the palace who enjoy his confidence and sell it to the highest bidder. His military glory is confined to cheats among whom many care more to make money out of the revolution, not by attacking the insurgents, but by allowing well-known sympathizers with the revolution to remain unmolested, or else permitting some captured leader to escape, they, of course, always being handsomely paid for their services. These are not mere idle street rumors. In a recent conversation with a prominent editor of a Havana journal, that gentleman told me that the above statements were unfortunately too true, but that it would not do to publish them. These statements have been made to your correspondent repeatedly, not by Cubans or their sympathizers, but by Spaniards, some of them officers in the volunteer forces. It is therefore certain that the Cubans will win, as I have stated before, and that they will do so not owing to any effort of theirs, but because of the careless and criminal manner in which the war is carried on by the Spanish leaders.

DEATH OF A HERO.

JOSE MANUEL DE QUESADA, uncle of General QUESADA, was captured at Las Piedras. QUESADA was a man 65 years of age. Previous to his execution he distinguished himself for his reserve, extraordinary resignation and a firm resolve not to receive religious aid; that is to say, not to confess to Father JUAN PAPO, who might have betrayed the secrets of the confessional. In vain did the Spanish officials employ threats and persuasion; in vain did they offer him life and money; the attempts of the priest to make him confess the secrets which he alone knew as confidential agent of his nephew were made in vain. His unvarying answer was, "I know nothing." He said to Captain TRIANA, however, previous to his execution, "You are only doing to me what I would have done to you in a similar case, but I only wish that others would have had the same courage as myself." If the nephew is as courageous as the uncle, he may well claim to lead armies and redeem his promise that he means to fight.

QUASIMODO.

Departure of General Dulce—General De Rodas to Sail as Soon for Spain.

HAVANA, Friday, June 4.

Captain-General DULCE sails to-morrow for Spain.

The United States frigate Sabine arrived here yesterday.

MADRID, Friday, June 4.

General DE RODAS is to sail immediately for Cuba, in reply to the demand of General DULCE, for immediate relief from the Captain-Generalcy of that island.

AID FOR THE CUBANS.

Sensational Stories Exploded—Resignation of the Members of Mass. Sent to Cuba—The Neutrality Laws—Non-Interference of the United States Marshal.

The sensational stories that have been published from time to time in some of the newspapers with regard to the departure from this and other parts of the United States of large bodies of armed men, in defiance of the Neutrality laws, with the design of joining the insurgents in Cuba, have never received much credence, and never deserved any. The TIMES has endeavored to present nothing on the subject that was not well authenticated. The fact about the business is that men and munitions of war have left the United States and have been landed in Cuba, and are at present employed in aiding the insurgents, and paradoxical as it may seem to those who are not well informed on the subject, all this has been done without the commission of any act by those engaged in the movements that would have justified the authorities, at this or any other United States port, in interfering to prevent the sailing of the vessels that carried them. There is a wide-spread misapprehension as to what constitutes a violation of the Neutrality laws. Under the laws of the United States, and in accordance with the law of nations, WM. H. VANDERBILT would have a right to build a vessel of war at his yard here in New-York, and sell it wherever he pleased, and sell it to parties at war with a nation with which the United States is at peace. To permit such a vessel to leave would not be a violation of neutrality by the United States. A private party may send contraband munitions of war from this port to any place he pleases in the world, and sell them to those designing to use them in making war upon a nation with which we are at peace. The Neutrality laws do not forbid such transactions as these, which are purely commercial in their nature. So any number of men may sail hence, to any foreign port they please, and unless there

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

THE PRODUCTION OF THE PRECIOUS METALS. By WILLIAM P. BLAKE. New-York: GEO. P. PUTNAM & SON.

The Commissioner from California to the Paris Exposition of 1867 furnishes in this book a general Report on the subject of the precious metals, presenting a mass of the most valuable statistics to show the amount of their production and circulation in the other gold-bearing and gold-employing regions of the world up to the present time, especially in the United States, all the hard facts and tabular surveys of the work being derived from the highest and most trustworthy sources extant. All its statements are solid, as becomes so important a theme; and even to an unfinancial reader, a great number of them would be found highly interesting. With respect to the bullion product of the two metals in this country, we find that it amounted for the year 1867 to $77,000,000, of which California's share was $57,000,000; Montana's $12,000,000; (BROWN's estimate is at $20,000,000.) Nevada's, $12,000,000—$12,000,000 of which were in silver; Oregon's and Washington's $2,000,000, gold, and Colorado's $2,000,000 in gold and only $500,000 in silver; the remainder being furnished by other States. Mr. BROWN gives $70,000,000 for the grand total of the above year—a figure which all statistical readers will be disposed to prefer to Mr. BLAKE's estimate. The latter presents the gold product of 1867 as $60,000,000—a harvest nearly half the amount furnished by all the other nations of the world, i. e., $130,000,000. Australia produced over $21,000,000; South America and Central America, $5,000,000; Russia, $15,000,000, and the rest of Europe, Africa and Asia, including China and Japan, $18,000,000. Another of these solid items, that to overcome the imagination like a mountain avalanche—or rather, like the mountain itself—is the fact that for the last twenty years the United States realized gold and silver bullion from the placers to the value of $1,075,000,000. Nevada has loomed large on the world's eye within a year or two. That region—with more than twice the extent of New-York—was a wilderness portion of Utah, till the discovery of the Comstock lode, which has added nearly $60,000,000 to the bullion of the world. During the Summer of 1868, the working of the White Pine deposits has still further increased the product of Nevada, which may now be termed the "Silver State" of the Union. In the pages devoted to Mexico we find that during the decade ending with 1867, the coinage of that Republic, in both metals, amounted to $173,400,910; and LEMPRIERE, quoted by our author, gives $4,600,000,000 as the amount realized in that country from the days of CORTES to the year 1853. Since the date of its independence, 1821, the amount taken from the mines is calculated at $800,000,000. Some of the national economists, like Mr. BLAKE, may point to the apparent fact that Mexico is very little the better for all her high-priced minerals; and, no doubt, these discoveries and gatherings of gold and silver are chiefly valuable as they widen the sphere of human effort, and stimulate the other and more valuable industries of men. But, since civilization is more than half superfluity, it cannot be denied that those precious metals have a strong claim to the time-honored appreciation of the world.

As regards the Russian gold-fields, that rank next to the American and the Australian, their chief products are from "washings," how worked out, on the eastern side of the Ural range. On this subject our author has the following:

The Uralian and Siberian gold field is perhaps the most extensive on the globe, stretching, as it does, along the Ural, and in the eastward through Siberia to the Kamtschatkan Sea, a distance, as remarked by CHEVALIER, which embraces the half of a circle, which would be described in making the circuit of the globe in the latitude of Philadelphia. The gold is distributed in numerous gorges and over a large portion, and the area over which they are spread is of an average width of about 150 miles.

It appears that these Siberian gold deposits were known and worked, at least in part, at a very remote period, as shekels of worth have been found in many points, and old miners, among the Russians, are wont to say, "Every shekel, which I not yet find, I find in Siberia," which, I not yet find, I find in Siberia, as it is probable, it was to Siberia, in ancient times, anterior to the conquest of Siberia by the Tartars 1000 years ago.

These ancient mines have been traced by GMELIN, PALLAS, and PALLAS, on the southern and eastern borders of the Ural Mountains, where, it is stated, in the old pits were wedges that miners made of copper, and heavy sledges made of stone, with grooves by which to fasten handles, appear to have been attached. The heads of hammers appear to be of bronze; and, with the gold, and some leathern bags have been found. Numerous fragments of earthenware are found to a great extent, and of the quality of that in use at present, and in many of these excavations, of various sizes, are found, as remarked by English travellers, a skillful hand, too, has made the different implements and weapons of the miner, particularly in his female character, though the interest in his stories is generally well sustained, yet in many of them the incidents are fact; a foreboding of which, as the consequence of vices, errors, or weaknesses in the actors, too soon perhaps arises in the reader's mind.

It must not be supposed, however, that his works are wanting in the lighter elements of fancy and humor. Of all his works, Professeur Claverius is considered the most poetic and interesting in Germany; and we have no doubt that in its English form it will meet with the same approbation in America.

—The Science of Rights. Translated from the German of FICHTE by A. E. KROEGER. (Philadelphia: LIPPINCOTT & Co.) FICHTE is not a difficult author to understand, in his own language; but we doubt if any one, unless it be Mr. KROEGER, can understand this translation. What, for example, can be made of the subjoined paragraph:

"AIM itself returning activity (Egoheod, subjectivity), is (should be) an ideal being. The positing of itself (reflecting about itself) is an act of this activity. Let this reflection be called A. The rational aim itself through the act of such an activity. All rational being (reflecting about the object) let this object be called B. Now, what act, or something must this object be an object of the reflection A? In A the rational being is to posit itself, i. e., to be its own object; but its character is itself returning activity. The last highest object in (B) of the reflection must, therefore, also be an object of a returning, or itself determining activity, since otherwise it would not posit itself as a rational being, and hence would not posit itself at all."

We trust Mr. KROEGER understands his own translation, and has not wilfully imposed upon his readers what to ordinary minds appears to be the jargon of arrant nonsense.

—The Uncommercial Traveler, &c. By CHARLES DICKENS. (New-York: HURD & HOUGHTON.) This volume belongs to a close the "Globe" edition of DICKENS' works, published by HURD & HOUGHTON, with illustrations on steel from designs by DARLEY and GILBERT. It contains The Uncommercial Traveler, Master Humphrey's Clock, New Christmas Stories, a general index of characters and their appearances—which is invaluable for purposes of reference—and a selection of familiar sayings from the works of DICKENS. The edition is very neat in appearance and convenient for the reader.

—Appleton's Republication of the Waverley Novels. The latest additions to APPLETON's new edition of the novels of Sir WALTER SCOTT are two volumes containing The Heart of Mid-Lothian, Count Robert of Paris, Fair Maid of Perth, Woodstock, Fortunes of Nigel, Anne of Geierstein, Quentin Durward, and The Surgeon's Daughter. These volumes are printed in clear though rather small type, and are illustrated with steel engravings and wood-cuts.

—The Old Testament History. Edited by Dr. WILLIAM SMITH, LL.D., (New-York: HARPER & BROTHERS.) This work forms a part of the valuable series called The Student's Histories, published by the HARPERS, designed for use in schools and colleges. Besides giving the history recorded in the Old Testament, with the necessary notes, explanations and references, the work contains an account of each of the Books of the Bible, the geography of the Holy Land, the political and ecclesiastical antiquities of the Jews, historical and genealogical tables, and other information of practical use to students of the Scriptures. It is profusely illustrated with maps and wood-cuts.

—Hans Breitmann About Town and Other New Ballads. By CHARLES G. LELAND. (Philadelphia: T. B. PETERSON & BROTHERS.) Mr. LELAND made a great hit with Hans Breitmann's Party, which at once attained a popularity as extensive as it was well deserved, both in this country and in Europe; but it is risking much to bring his hero so soon upon the stage again. This second series of the "Breitmann Ballads" is by no means equal to the first, and as the novelty of the idea is gone, it will not be surprising if the humorous and kindly Dutchman should not find himself, on his reappearance, a "ordinary honored guest." The humor no longer flows as free, and the verse is less easy and spontaneous than it was.

—Vulgarisms and Other Errors of Speech. Second edition, (Philadelphia: CLAXTON, REMSEN & HAFFELFINGER.) This edition of a work which we noticed at some length on its first appearance, is enlarged by the addition of a critical review—Mr. G. WASHINGTON MOORE's Dean's English and Bad English. The author points out many mistakes and vulgarisms into which too many speakers and writers fall, either through negligence or ignorance, and which a perusal of his work will aid them in avoiding.

—Studies on Thackeray. By JAMES HAYNE. (New-York and London: GEORGE ROUTLEDGE & SONS.) A just and thoroughly appreciative criticism on the literary character of the greatest satirist of modern times.

—Virgil's Æneid, with notes, lexicon, maps, &c. By EDWARD SEARING. (New-York: A. S. BARNES & Co.) This work fulfills many of the conditions of a good school book. It is printed in large, clear type, on firm paper, is convenient in size and practical in the general arrangement of text and notes. The illustrations are attractive as well as useful, and the whole appearance of the book is calculated to interest the learner.

—Home Circle Library. (Cincinnati: HITCHCOCK & WALDEN.)—The works belonging to this juvenile library, which is divided into four sets, consists of travels, biographies and sketches of history, by different authors, and are written with a view to the instruction as well as the amusement of the young. Of course, there are various degrees of merit in them; some of them are sprightly enough in style and matter to interest young readers, while others have the didactic, sermonizing tone that makes so many Sunday School books the terror of children on days when the reading of "regular" books is forbidden. When Will writers for the young learn that children are taught more readily by example than by precept, and that young brains and hearts are quick to catch the lesson of a lifetime from a single incident?

—Reports of Humanity, Brotherly Merrywit to the Tear-rattling Current of Human Speech. (Philadelphia: LIPPINCOTT & Co.) The title-page does not contain the name of the author to whom we are indebted by this new volume of metaphysics in verse; and in truth we do not greatly care to know. Judged by his productions, he seems to be a compound of Dr. WATTS and TATE and READY. The poem is divided into three "Aspects," as follows: 1st, The Developed Plant; 2d, The Developed Animal; 3d, The Conscious Man. We see by the preface that the work was finished ten years ago, though only just published. The author should have kept it ten years longer, and then burned it.

—The Horse in the Stable and the Field, &c. By J. H. WALSH, F. R. C. S., author of British Rural Sports, &c. (Philadelphia: FORNEY & COATES.) The American republication of this valuable work is enriched with copious notes and additions by ROBERT MCCLURE, M. D., V. S., author of Diseases of the American Stable, Field and Farm, and with a survey on the American horse, and numerous illustrations on the breeding and training of trotters, by ELLWOOD HARVEY, M. D. It is illustrated with over eighty engravings, and contains a vast amount of useful practical information in regard to the breeding, training and general management of horses.

—The Laws of Business. By THEOPHILUS PARSONS, LL. D. (Hartford: S. S. SCRANTON & Co.) This very valuable work forms one of the important series of text books on commercial law, and is designed mainly for the use of those who are not lawyers, but whose business requires some practical knowledge of the acts and statutes which regulate commercial transactions. The work is exceedingly full of matter, is clearly arranged, and is furnished with a minute index of subjects which adds greatly to its value.

—Modern Practice of the Electric Telegraph. By FRANK L. POPE. (New-York: RUSSELL BROTHERS.) This work was prepared as a handbook for electricians and operators, and is practical and useful.

—Parsons on the Press. (New-York: ORANGE JUDD & Co.) This is a new and revised edition of a work long recognized as a standard authority on the subject whereof it treats.

THE McCONNELL MURDER TRIAL.

Close of the Testimony for the Prosecution—What has been Elicited against the Prisoner, William A. Robinson.

A special dispatch from Jacksonville, Ill., June 3, gives the following summary of the evidence obtained up to that date in the trial of WILLIAM A. ROBINSON, the young man accused of the murder of General MURRAY MCCONNELL in February last:

Ten days, fraught with important interest to the prisoner, have gone slowly by since WILLIAM A. ROBINSON was arraigned for the murder of General MURRAY MCCONNELL. During that time many witnesses have been examined, and numerous facts, relevant and irrevelant, proved. The interest manifested has at all times been intense, the attendance large, and the proceedings generally impressive and decorous. The prosecution has been in the main conducted with fairness and an earnest desire to elicit the truth, and at all times with ability and tact, though the manner of asking questions has been at times annoying, and has had the effect to prolong the trial. Judges WOODWARD and SHAW, who have taken as yet the only prominent part in the defense, have, with admirable skill, protected their client in his rights as a defendant, and, by their dignified and courteous manner, have won the admiration of all. The sympathy for the prisoner has been manifested by the most delicate tokens, and numerous bouquets, beautiful and bright, presented by the fair hands of maidens, have been by him carried from the Court-room to the jail. There is no question but that the facts that have been proved against him. These, as gathered from the evidence thus far taken, are, briefly, that on Feb. 9, during the time between ten minutes before and ten minutes after 9 o'clock, at a place where General MCCONNELL was murdered, the deceased ROBINSON was during that time seen by one person to enter the house, and by another to leave it, and by a third to be standing near it about 9 o'clock on the succeeding night. The defendant owed McCONNELL a note of hand, dated May 3, 1867, which note was not collected among others, but cannot now be found. This note he claims, in his statement before the Coroner, to have paid off on the 10th day of December, with money accumulated at his store, money he had accumulated in his with his money, on the 26th of November, he stated that he thought he could pay it soon. His business does not seem to have been such as to warrant the collection of that much money at that time. He had two books, Nos. 3 and 4, each containing his accounts from June 27 to Feb. 9. In book No. 3 the entries from Dec. 1 to Dec. 15, are: "Dec. 7, cash to merchandise, $2 25;" "Dec. 8, cash to merchandise, $2 50;" "Dec. 9, cash to merchandise, $8;" "Dec. 10, cash to merchandise, $2 25;" "Dec. 11, cash to merchandise, $1;" in book No. 4 the entries from Dec. 1 to Dec. 10 are: "Dec. 7, $137 25;" "Dec. 8, cash to merchandise, $12 50;" "Dec. 9, cash to merchandise, $95;" "Dec. 10, cash to merchandise, $63 25;" "Dec. 11, cash to merchandise, $10." The differences in these books, when compared with the credit side of the account in book No. 4 is that the entry "paid to Murray McConnell" The figures in the fourth and fifth places in book No. 4 are in lighter colored inks. A card found in his desk, having upon it these figures, has been introduced in evidence. His clothes were found in his trunk at the Mansion House, and his boots he furnished by himself. There is not the slightest evidence of blood about them. A portion of the dirt from the bottom of one of his boots was subjected to many tests, and the result was unsatisfactory.

The prosecution rested at 10 o'clock, and the Court adjourned till 1½ o'clock this afternoon. It is not known what the defence will be, nor how long a time it will consume.

THE CHITTENDEN WILL CASE.

Further Examination of Witnesses—How the Deceased was Kidnapped and how he Escaped—The Folly of Trying to Prevent a Man from Marrying if he Feels Like It.

The hearing in the case of the will of LUCIUS CHITTENDEN, deceased, the main facts in relation to which were given in yesterday's TIMES, was continued yesterday before Surrogate TUCKER. Messrs. FLANDERS and MERCALF, counsel for the special guardian of Miss LUCINDA CHITTENDEN, the daughter of the deceased, appeared in opposition to admitting the will to probate, and Messrs. STEWART, RICE and WOODFORD appeared as counsel for the proponent and executrix, Mrs. AMELIA CHITTENDEN, the wife of the deceased.

EDWARD CHITTENDEN, brother of the deceased, was recalled to the stand as a witness against the will, and his examination continued by Mr. FLANDERS. He said that after the deceased was brought to his house in Waterford in the Summer of 1866, no restraint was exercised over him, but he was allowed to go in and out as he pleased. While the deceased was there he proposed to be married Miss LOCKWOOD; he had given his nephew, STERN CHITTENDEN, a writing to carry out the provisions of the former will; that he had settled on Miss LOCKWOOD, in case she became his wife, a house in New-York valued at $90,000. He expressed himself entirely satisfied with STERN's management of his affairs, and said that if there was an honest man in the world, he believed STERN to be one. He said the will then existing was all he intended to have it, except that he wished to increase the legacy to witness from $5,000 to $10,000, as he had taken care of and done a great deal for him. He made no complaints while there against his brother or any of his relatives; he never said he had been brought there against his will; he said he went to take a ride with his brother ARAMEL and was brought to Waterbury against his wishes. He asked me to take him to Brooklyn, and to stop on the way at Stamford and get his trunk. I told him I would take him to Brooklyn; that he could meet his daughter, and if she had not influence enough over him to keep him away from Stamford I would make no further objections, but let him go where he liked. We had made up our minds to start for Brooklyn the next morning, when the hackman came and inquired to get him away from my house. The deceased was taken to Cheshire before Judge HIRMAN, where I made my statement of the whole affair and he made his. In consolation, I asked the Judge to send the deceased where he could see his daughter, either to my home or to Brooklyn. Mr. WEBSTER, the lawyer, who obtained the writ, said they should do no such thing. Miss LOCKWOOD was present. After the Court adjourned, deceased was taken into a carriage with other gentlemen and driven away. Previously his being brought to my house, which I had no knowledge of, Mr. LEWIS, of that place, had told him he could cure him of his rheumatism; he said he had not much faith in it, but he was going to let him try. I told him then I thought his Stamford friends were trying to induce him to stay there for the purpose of getting him married; and that I thought that elopement would be damaging to him, and perhaps cost him his life; he said he no idea of such a thing as marrying; he told me he would come to my house in Brooklyn that night. About a week afterward I went down to Stamford and found him in the same place, sitting in the same chair, and in about the same position. I then remained with him and spent the evening and next night; told him I had received good and sufficient why he should not marry; that such a course would be against the wishes of his dead father and might cause her death; he replied that he should not marry. After the marriage I visited him at Stamford; found him sitting on a chair alone; he said he had had a fall and was unable to rise; he appeared very feeble, much reduced in flesh, and very nervous.

On cross-examination by Mr. STEWART, Witness said he could not remember the day of the month or of the week that his brother was brought to his house in Waterbury, by his brother ARAMEL; did not hear him say while there that he had been dragged, only that he was brought there against his will. He did not remonstrate against being confined there, and cry out "murder" in my presence; I heard he had done so in my absence; I did not remonstrate against it. I would watch him and not let any one see him; I never said to the boy, "don't recollect what statement my brother LUCIUS made to Judge HIRMAN when he was taken to Cheshire on habeas corpus; don't remember whether he told the Judge he was detained at my house against his will. After I had asked the Judge to send him to my house on to Brooklyn to meet his daughter, the Judge said he could go where he liked. I met friend of his proposed wife, Miss LOCKWOOD in the Summer of 1866. He said he proposed Miss Atkins would like to marry a friend of her mother's. He said he should never marry again; he said that what caused him to marry was his children. Was not at Stamford when deceased married Miss Lockwood; was at Stamford when deceased was there; was there when deceased was one person to enter the house, and by another to leave it, and by a third to be standing near it about 9 o'clock on the succeeding night. The defendant owed McCONNELL a note of hand, dated May 3, 1867, which note was not collected among others, but cannot now be found. This note he claims, in his statement before the Coroner, to have paid off on the 10th day of December, with money accumulated at his store, money he had accumulated in his with his money, on the 26th of November, he stated that he thought he could pay it soon. His business does not seem to have been such as to warrant the collection of that much money at that time. He had two books, Nos. 3 and 4, each containing his accounts from June 27 to Feb. 9. In book No. 3 the entries from Dec. 1 to Dec. 15, are: "Dec. 7, cash to merchandise, $2 25;" "Dec. 8, cash to merchandise, $2 50;" "Dec. 9, cash to merchandise, $8;" "Dec. 10, cash to merchandise, $2 25;" "Dec. 11, cash to merchandise, $1;" in book No. 4 the entries from Dec. 1 to Dec. 10 are: "Dec. 7, $137 25;" "Dec. 8, cash to merchandise, $12 50;" "Dec. 9, cash to merchandise, $95;" "Dec. 10, cash to merchandise, $63 25;" "Dec. 11, cash to merchandise, $10." The differences in these books, when compared with the credit side of the account in book No. 4 is that the entry "paid to Murray McConnell" The figures in the fourth and fifth places in book No. 4 are in lighter colored inks. A card found in his desk, having upon it these figures, has been introduced in evidence. His clothes were found in his trunk at the Mansion House, and his boots he furnished by himself. There is not the slightest evidence of blood about them. A portion of the dirt from the bottom of one of his boots was subjected to many tests, and the result was unsatisfactory.

The prosecution rested at 10 o'clock, and the Court adjourned till 1½ o'clock this afternoon. It is not known what the defence will be, nor how long a time it will consume.

INVESTIGATION OF BURGLARIES.

Burglars Caught in the Act, but Not Captured—Problems in Thief-Taking.

The only cases of public interest investigated by Commissioner BRENNAN, yesterday, at the trials of policemen, were complaints against officers for neglect of duty in not capturing burglars who had entered buildings on their posts. They present interesting problems as to the best means of catching this class of thieves.

THE BURGLAR ALARMED.

MATTHEW ASH, patrolman of the Forty-third (Brooklyn) Precinct, was charged with failing to make proper efforts to arrest a burglar. The evidence was to the effect that the private dwelling, No. 240 Pacific-street had upon either side vacant ground; on the night of the 26th of May, Officer ASH saw a man get over the fence and enter the rear yard of the house; the officer placed his ear to the back door of the front basement door; a few minutes elapsed, and he heard a stumbling noise as though the person inside had run against something in the hallway; then he thought he heard the man groping along feelingly with his hands on the side of the hall; finally the man's hand passed right over the keyhole opposite the officer's ear; soon after he heard him groping his way back. Owing to the peculiar situation of the house, the officer said he did not know what to do at this stage, but concluded to rap for assistance; he did so, and his "rattlers" soon connected with the beats of the club on the sidewalk had also been a notification to the burglar, and he escaped.

Captain RHODES seemed to be of opinion that the officer should have followed the thief when he went in the house, and captured him. No robbery was committed. ASH is a new man for the force, and apparently quite an intelligent man. He said this was his first experience with a burglar. The Commissioner admonished him to get posted from the Captain as to how he should proceed in similar emergencies. Complaint dismissed.

NOTHING SUCCEEDS BUT SUCCESS.

The charge against Patrolman GEORGE ACKERMAN, of the Twenty-third Precinct, was that between 1 and 2 o'clock on the morning of the 26th of May, an entrance was effected to the coal office corner of Third-avenue and Seventy-ninth-street, and ACKERMAN made no effort to arrest the burglars. At about 2:15 o'clock the officer heard a noise in the office, which he says sounded like a burglary step; he tried the door and attempted to discover whether there was a light inside; there was none; all was still again; the officer went over his post, and, returning, pursued his investigations; getting upon some stones he managed to look between slats over the gate, and saw a man on the platform inside. The officer drew his pistol, when it occurred to him that the person might be a private watchman or an employe in the stable, for which purpose a part of the building was used. He was about to ask the man his business, when the burglar dodged out of what the officer at the time supposed to be a door, which afterward proved to be a window. The officer immediately dispatched a lamplighter, who was on the sidewalk, for assistance; in three or four minutes several arrived, and among them Acting-Sergeant MALONEY, the man for his capture of the butcher-cart thief. MALONEY immediately sprang over a high fence, but the burglar had effected his escape. He had, however, left a full set of tools, and had partly pried off the front plate of the safe. MALONEY said the officer admitted to him that he saw the burglar another hour previous to getting assistance. ACKERMAN denied this, and asserted that he saw him only seven or eight minutes before. MALONEY thought the burglar had gone over the fence he could have effected his escape. The defendant alleged that it was impossible to scale so high a fence; but as MALONEY did get over it in less than a minute after his appearance on the scene, and Mr. SILLICK, the proprietor of the yard, said he also could do it, the excuse will hardly pass muster. The Commissioner stated that ACKERMAN manifested very little efficiency. The sound of horses' feet and the strokes on a safe he thought should be easily distinguishable. Case referred to the Board. In each case the Police pace entitled to the credit of having prevented depredations from being committed.

The First-Avenue Shooting Affray—Ante-Mortem Examination in the Case.

Extended mention was made in yesterday's TIMES of an affray which occurred on Thursday night in First-avenue, and resulted in the serious wounding of RICHARD GERDES and THOMAS COSTELLO. About midnight Coroner KEENAN was notified at his residence of the wounding of these two men, and he immediately proceeded to Bellevue Hospital, where he found the men in a very critical condition, though hopeful of recovery. The Coroner then proceeded to take their ante-mortem statement.

RICHARD GERDES made the following as his version of the affair: Mr. HAMILTON and Mr. WILKINS were sitting on the corner talking. It was then about 11½ o'clock. I heard the cry of "Stop thief," and saw a man knocked down on First-avenue near Twenty-fourth-street. The man who was knocked down looked like JOSEPH HARKNETT. He was not the MAN who fired the shot that hit me. The man who fired the shot stood on the lower corner of Twenty-fourth-street; I saw the flash of two pistols from that corner. I think I was struck by the last shot fired.

THOMAS COSTELLO's statement was as follows: About 9 or 10 o'clock, MICHAEL CARNEY, JOSEPH HARKNETT and another man, whose name I do not know, came into my store, corner of First-avenue and Twenty-fifth-street, and had a drink together. HARKNETT then said I had passed some bad money on him, and said also that certain parties had told him that I had started the store for the purpose of passing bad money; we had some words, whereupon to me there began quarreling with my wife; I then took hold of HARKNETT by the collar and put him out. When I had him out on the sidewalk, I came back into the store. HARKNETT then fired the shot at my stomach. A crowd ran after him shouting "Stop thief," and caught up to him at Twenty-fourth-street. CARNEY then fired with another pistol and shot RICHARD GERDES and myself. After he shot me he fired three more shots.

The jury rendered the following as their verdict:

"That RICHARD GERDES and THOMAS COSTELLO came to their wounds at the hands of MICHAEL CARNEY, and we find also that JOSEPH HARKNETT and FRANK J. CAMP were accessories before the fact."

All three of the accused were accordingly committed to the Tombs by the Coroner to await the result of the wounds inflicted by the victims.

The Brooklyn School Troubles.

It is understood that fourteen members of the Brooklyn Board of Education met at the house of one of its members, in Washington-street, last week, for the purpose of concerting upon some plan by which to make certain that the incoming members of the Board at the July meeting shall not have a voice in the organization of the Board for the ensuing year. At this meeting, the resolution (providing that the organization of the Board be put off until July, 1870, the elections of officers to be held annually thereafter,) offered by Mr. OTIS F. SMITH at the last meeting of the Board, was agreed upon, and it is understood, as part of the plan that a special meeting of the Board will be called within a few days, for the purpose of taking further action upon Mr. SMITH's resolution, the law requiring that any resolution for amending the by-laws of the Board, must be passed at two consecutive meetings of the Board. This causes an outcry from the friends of the Board, who say that the fourteen gentlemen referred to, by their absence from the meeting, left it in the power of a few Republicans to defeat the Board in transacting its business, to prevent the new members who take their seats in July, from having any vacancy in the Board to which they are appointed, and in which they have to assume important responsibilities.

A CHILD'S MA-TER-PASSION.

Remarkable Habeas Corpus Case—A Little Girl Refuses to Live with Her Own Mother.

In the Supreme Court Chambers yesterday, before Judge CARDOZO, an interesting case came up by means of a writ of Habeas corpus. The petitioner is Mrs. MCCONNICK, the mother of a girl between 8 and 9 years of age. The facts appear to be, that seven years ago, Mr. O'CONNELL, the father of the child, died, and the mother being in no condition to support the infant, gave it into the custody of Mr. JOHN O'CONNELL, a brother of the deceased husband, with the understanding that he was to take it, educate and support it as he would one of his own children. There is no dispute but that the uncle has done so for seven years to the satisfaction of all concerned. But recently the widow was married to Mr. MCCONNICK, and she now feels abundantly able to take her little girl and bring her up properly. Not getting possession of the child upon an application to the uncle, she went to her counsel, Mr. C. S. SPENCER, related her story, and upon her sworn petition a writ of Habeas corpus was issued to have the little girl, JANE ELLEN by name, brought before the Court yesterday. The facts stated on the hearing were substantially as above. The mother appeared by her counsel, Mr. JOHN O'CONNELL, the respondent, said he had employed no counsel. He had taken care of this child for seven years to the best of his knowledge. He had treated the girl as his own, and, after all that had passed, he never had an idea, until quite recently, that she would not always be treated as his daughter. He had taken her when she was little more than a year old; all she knew of parental care and affection was that which she had received in his household. He was confident she was more attached to him than to her mother, and that she would not willingly leave him. However, the Court, he said, must decide. If the Judge thought, under all the circumstances, that the child's welfare would be best promoted by ordering the custody to the mother, he would try to be content.

Judge CARDOZO asked if there was any allegation or suggestion that the mother is not a fit and proper person to have charge of the little girl. It was admitted that nothing could be said against the mother in that respect. The Judge said that such being the state of things, he must make an order that the child be transferred to the custody of the mother; she being its natural guardian and protector, had the best right to her own offspring.

At this stage of the proceedings the girl for the first time began to make demonstrations indicating that, whatever the Court might order, she would not be parted from her uncle without a struggle. The parties retired from the court room; but as soon as they were in the hall, the child began to sob and cry most piteously, at the same time begging her uncle to take her home with him. He tried to pacify her by saying he could do nothing; that the Judge had said she must go home with her mother. This she stoutly refused to do; and when the mother took hold of her hand to lead her down the steps, she sprang from her and thrust her little fingers through the holes in the iron steps, and thus hung in spite of all the strength put forth by the mother to release her. The child was then taken in and around the Court-house, began to be exciting. An eager throng had gathered. Scarcely any one, of course, knew what the trouble was, but many cried, "shame, shame," and the interposition of her determination to secure the child at all hazards, wrenched and pulled and tore the girl to make her let go her hold. About this time the uncle descended the steps, and the child seeing him rushed after him, caught hold of him, and cling tightly, all the while crying out in tones imploring tones: "Oh, take me with you, take me home with you! don't want to live unless I can live with you!" and other like expressions. By this time the interested parties were in the Park. The crowd of spectators was large and momentarily increasing. There was no talking now for the girl, though they evidently knew nothing about the merits of the case. A policeman was about to interfere, when Judge CARDOZO, with much tact, descended from the Bench, called an officer of the Court, and directed him to bring the child into the Judge's private room. But this was no easy matter to do. The child would not go one step towards the Judge unless her uncle went with her. Finally Officer WILLIAM RICKETTS was compelled to take the girl up and carry her to the door of the private room. Arrived there she would not enter unless the uncle went in also, and amid her sobs and cries, she insisted that her uncle was at last admitted into the presence of the Judge with the child. What the conversation was in the private room is not known, but after the interview the Judge countermanded his order, and directed that for the present, at least, the little girl shall dwell in the family where she has been thus far reared, and the members of which she has been taught to love.

The Female Elephant in the Central Park.

In addition to the new mineral spring establishment, a novel guest arrived last night for the menagerie of the Park. This is a colossal female elephant named "Andra," eleven feet in height, and weighing eighteen thousand pounds. It is but thirty-eight years old, and has a prospect of growing taller until fifty, at which age elephants are supposed to attain their full or fullest growth. The tallest animal of the kind at present known in this country was ten and a half feet in height, and died five years ago in Frost's Menagerie. The largest that has appeared in Europe was thirteen and a half feet high, and was exhibited in London. The present now arrival reached here in the Holsatia, from Hamburg on Monday, and was taken last night to the Park, where it will remain for a month, and then depart with a menagerie. The owner does not intend if at present, and the Park Commissioners have undertaken to give it plenty of room during that period, on condition of exhibiting it free to the public. The animal consumes twenty-five four-pound loaves of bread daily, together with three hundred pounds of bran, mash and oats, and twenty hundred and fifty pounds of hay. It drinks twenty gallons of water morning and twenty in the evening. Its temper is good, and it is accomplished in tricks, giving its paw, when requested, with great adaptility.

Singular Conduct of a Woman.

On Thursday night as Sergeant Wm. MCCLARY, of the Fourteenth Precinct, was standing in front of the Station-house in Spring-street, he was accosted by a woman named LOUISA MUSGRAVE, who informed him that she had a great opinion of the Police force, and that she had relatives in the European Police. She finally concluded her singular harangue by handing the amused Sergeant a check for $200 on the Bank of Commerce, purporting to have been drawn by AARON HARDING, Real Estate Agent, having an office on the corner of Broome-street and Broadway, in favor of LOUISA. The Sergeant handed it back to the woman, but she refused to keep the check, and departed without it. Sergeant MCCLARY yesterday morning made inquiries, and ascertained that the check was a genuine issue, and as he failed to find the woman, he surrendered the check to Sergeant KENNEDY, who turned it over to the property clerk.

A Steam Road Roller.

A party of engineers assembled at the Central Park yesterday morning to witness the operation of a steam road and park roller, imported from England, and manufactured by AVELING & PORTER, of Rochester, Kent. The machine comprehended an ordinary steam engine of ninety-horse power, with a wide roller in front, divided into two parts and two rollers behind, widely divided by the engine. The whole weighed fifteen tons, and performed the service required admirably and economically. The speed attained was two and a half miles an hour, which can be performed upon a rise of either a yard or a fathom in one hundred. The maximum velocity was stated to be three or four miles an hour. Neither the engine nor the rollers were in themselves novelties. The peculiarity of the machine lay in the arrangement of the parts, which enabled it to turn in a space less than its own length. Mr. GERARD, Superintendent of the Central Park, was present, together with Mr. SHEARMAN, of Prospect Park, Brooklyn, and several gentlemen interested in laying out the parks of other cities.

Music at the Central Park.

The Central Park Commissioners announce that if the weather be fine, there will be music on the mall at the Park to-day, commencing at 4:30 P. M.

The following is the programme:

10. Fast Song, "The Vale of Rest" ..... Mendelssohn
11. Polka, "Bagatelle" ..... Coste
12. Polka, "Home Thoughts" ..... Coste

A Boy Accidentally Killed—A Singular Case.

Coroner KEENAN held an inquest yesterday in the case of WM. HENRY HARRISON, aged 11 years, and lately residing at No. 417 Cherry-street, whose death was the result of a singular accident. The deceased, it appears from the evidence, went to Hackett's on Thursday, to play with another boy, named CHARLES HART, to look for work. When they passed Hackett's establishment, HART picked up a small block of wood and struck it with a slip of wood as one would hit a ball, and remarked to his companion, "Billy, look out." The block flew swiftly through the air and took effect on HARRISON's temple, causing a severe wound. The boy made no special mention of any pain until he reached home a few hours after, when he explained the cause of his hurt, and exonerated young HART from all blame in the matter. After nightfall convulsions set in, and death occurred at 7 P. M. Dr. WOODRUM BRADY having made the necessary examination, expressed the opinion that death had resulted from compression of the brain, and a fracture of the skull. The jury rendered a verdict of accidental death.

Another Fourteenth Well-street Litigation.

In the case of JAMES E. LYON vs. THOMAS M. IRWIN, JOHN KERR and WARNER E. FARR, in which the defendants are charged with the "wrongful conversion of certain bonds and stocks," Judge MCCUNN yesterday granted orders of arrest against the defendants, fixing the amount of bail at $200,000. The orders were granted on the formal affidavit under the statute, from which the particulars of the transaction could not be learned. When the application was being made, the Judge inquired of the defendant, KERR, was JOHN KERR the brewer, so prominent in City matters, and on being informed that that was not the JOHN KERR named in the affidavit, he stated that if it was the order would not be so promptly granted.

Captain Mills' Case—He Escapes With a Reprimand.

The Board of Police Commissioners yesterday took action in the case of Captain NATHANIEL E. MILLS, of the Eighth Precinct, who was recently on trial before the Board on a charge of selling tickets at a menagerie, the details of which trial created considerable amusement at the time. Mr. SHERMAN, true to his avowed aversion to Captain MILLS, moved for his dismissal from the force, as he did on one or two similar occasions in the past. The other Commissioners, however, refused to concur in the resolution, and decided that the culprit be sentenced to be reprimanded verbally by the President of the Board. Those who know Judge BOSWORTH will readily believe that the reprimand will be a very mild and affectionate one.

The Briggs Arson Case—Mr. Briggs Admitted to Bail.

Justice DOWLING changed his mind yesterday in relation to the matter of accepting bail for Mr. JOHN UNDERHILL BRIGGS, who is accused of arson in causing his stables to be set on fire on the night of the 26th of December last. The accused, it may be remembered, was fully committed without bail for examination on Monday next, together with WM. P. SHELDON, who is now in prison for the same offence. The Magistrate consented yesterday to fix the amount of bail in the case of Mr. BRIGGS, and announced the amount to be $20,000. The necessary bonds were promptly entered into, Mr. JOHN H. EARLE, of Earle's Hotel, when the accused was set at liberty until the proposed examination. No action was taken in the case of SHELDON, so he remains in a cell until the Magistrate has made further investigation in the case.

Found Drowned.

At an early hour yesterday morning the remains of an unknown man, aged about 40 years, dressed in a Penitentiary convict's dress, were discovered floating in the East River, near Pier No. 26, by a boatman named SAPPERS DEAN, of No. 42 Oak-street. Coroner COLLINS ordered the body to be removed to the Morgue for identification and inquest.

The body of another unknown man was also found yesterday in the East River, near the foot of Delancey-street. The deceased had evidently been drowned some time during the Winter, as the remains were in an advanced stage of decomposition, so that they could not be exposed at the Morgue.

Another Homicide—Death of the Woman Who Was Thrown from a Window.

MRS. MARGARET BARRES, the woman who was severely injured on the 20th ult., as is alleged, by her being precipitated from a window at No. 61 Roosevelt-street, by her husband MICHAEL BARRES, during a brief quarrel, died yesterday at the Bellevue Hospital. The facts of the case have already been fully reported here. Coroner ROLLINS was notified yesterday of the woman's death, and will hold an inquest to-day.

Velocipede News—A Five-Mile Race in Prospect.

The exp

[illegible] have strange, and at some moments of highest Foreign Exchange, (which proved false alarm,) they advanced the bidding to 108¼@108¾ ⅌ cent. The transactions of the Gold Room were, in the main, larger than on Thursday, and the contest for a higher figure quite interesting. The quotations left off quiet at 108¼@108⅜ ⅌ cent.

The actual business in Foreign Bills was at an average of 109¼ ⅌ cent. for 60 days London, and 109¾@110 for short sight. Gold for five leading Bankers continued unchanged 108¼@¾ ⅌ cent. In settlement of credits, but their own Bills and Bills of equal credit were done on the street ¾@⅞ ⅌ cent. below these rates.

Money was in good supply at 7 ⅌ cent. per annum to the Brokers, and there was less demand than on Wednesday or Thursday, partly on account of the perceptible falling off in business in the Public Funds. They fairly maintain their prices, but the speculation in the sale of 1867, and other descriptions, is comparatively dead. The foreign demand continues for the 5-20s of 1862, which closed 12⅛@12⅜ ⅌ cent.

The Stock Exchange was active on the Southern State Bonds at steady prices, and there was a good inquiry for the Railway Mortgages. The Miscellaneous Shares were steady on Mariposa, Pacific Mail and Canton Company, Western Telegraph fell at 42¼@42⅝ ⅌ cent. In the Railway market there was a general recovery from the depression of last night, and a large business was resumed in Chicago and Rock Island, and Michigan Southern and Lake Shore. The latter was especially excited and sold 114⅛@114⅝@115⅛@115⅜@115⅛@114⅞@114 ⅌ cent. At 114 ⅌ cent. in the Long-room it got attention the transactions in the stock were very large, one of the VANDERBILT Brokers taking 5,000 shares and bidding for any part of 10,000 shares more. The principal seller was a Broker who has the credit on the Street of being a decided Bear on this and other of the Western Stocks. The New-York Stocks were again well supported; New-Jersey Central fell back from the sudden rise of yesterday to 120¾@122 ⅌ cent., and sold St. Paul's and Northwests were better than last night and not pressed on sale.

After the late Boards broke up the following quotations were made as compared with Thursday night—the Railways closing steady: Gold, 108¼@108⅜ ⅌ cent.; Fort Wayne Stock up to 128½@129 ⅌ cent.:

Failure of Philadelphia Insurance Company.

From the Philadelphia Inquirer, June 4.

Some days ago the Protection Insurance Company, No. 327 South Third-street, suddenly suspended operations, and on inquiry, the creditors and the holders of policies found that its assets amounted to but little more than the office furniture. Their stocks had been represented for a long time as valued at $[illegible], and their business cards issued to the public bore this statement on the top. These stock securities are estimated at about $40,000; but it is impossible to tell from the books the real amount. Of course this is all a dead loss so far as those it is owing. The Company's office was luxuriously fitted up, and looked as if flourishing enough. Company were in a most prosperous condition. The creditors immediately put the furniture into the hands of the Sheriff, and it was sold a few days ago. The company had long been considered among those whom business men were to know, as one to be avoided, and the business had, in fact, not to great, which, however, makes the individual loss heavier. They paid $1,000 a year for their office, and the agent for the property obtained his rent a short time before the suspension. The office has been kept quiet, although losses are bitter in their complaints, claiming that the Company's affairs were mismanaged and [illegible].

In the latter part of last week the Kensington Insurance Company, located at the northwest corner of Fourth and Walnut streets, also closed their doors, and their affairs were put into the hands of a receiver. Their liabilities are said to be quite heavy, though the actual amount is not known. The holders of policies in this Company are much more numerous than those in the Protection. [illegible]

NEWS OF THE DAY.

EUROPE.

The Dublin Orangemen have just held another large meeting to protest against the disestablishment of the Irish Church.

The death of the Right Hon. Lord BROUGHTON is announced by Cable dispatch from London.

GENERAL.

Each of the candidates for municipal offices in Washington, to be voted for on Monday, is to receive a circular from the "National Franchise Association," asking three questions: 1. Whether, if elected, he will use his influence to enfranchise the women of the District of Columbia; 2. Whether he will use his influence to secure women official appointments; and, 3. Whether he will protect women in the free exercise of all honest employments.

The San Francisco papers report that a seaman on board the ship Archer, lying in the harbor of that city, was recently terribly beaten and abused by some of the officers of the ship, for some trivial misdemeanor, and found not long after in the hold with his throat cut. It is stated that the man was dragged about nearly an hour by the head, and brutally kicked and pounded. The officers accused were arrested.

It is reported that a vein of pure anthracite coal, about nine feet in thickness, has been discovered at Buffalo Gap, eleven miles west of Staunton, Va.

A case was dismissed from the Superior Court at Boston, by Judge BRIGHAM, on Thursday, on account of the defendant having published a card in the daily papers addressed to the Judge and jury. The validity of certain work upon a pilot boat coming into the case, J. K. LUNT, the defendant, offered in the newspaper advertising columns to show the work to the Court that it might judge "who tells the truth." Judge BRIGHAM was very severe upon the papers for admitting such matter to their columns, and ordered Mr. LUNT to pay all the costs of both parties to the suit.

Another post-graduate scholarship has been established in Harvard College. The scholarship will draw from the income of $700 per year. The student selected will be required to reside at Cambridge, pursue such general studies as are approved by the faculty, but not take up any special studies with a view to a profession; shall prepare from time to time essays and dissertations to show that he has made satisfactory progress in his position; and shall not hold any position of profit either in or out of the College other than that of proctor or assistant at the examinations.

The next meeting of the International Convention of Young Men's Christian Associations will be held July 14, at Portland, Me.

Nothing yet has been heard from the steamship United Kingdom, of the Anchor Line, which left this port for Liverpool in April last.

The Executive Committee of the Harvard Alumni have reconsidered their first decision, and have voted to have a dinner on Commencement Day, which, this year, occurs on the 16th of June. The dinner will be presided over by Mr. WILLIAM GRAY, President of the Association, and the Vice-Presidents, Hon. CHARLES H. WARREN, J. THOMAS STEVENSON, Esq., Hon. GEORGE S. HILLARD, Judge HOAR, HENRY LEE, and JOSEPH H. CHOATE, Esqs., it is expected, will also be present.

The United States Consul at Melbourne reports the arrival at that port of WM. C. ROSS, cook and steward on board the schooner Good Templar, of San Francisco, who, states that that vessel left San Francisco Aug. 1, 1868, and was totally wrecked on Ross Island, one of the Navigator group, on the 14th of September, 1868, and all hands perished except himself and two seamen, (British subjects,) who shipped after the vessel cleared at the San Francisco Custom-house.

The wife-murderer MESSNER, who was to have been executed yesterday, at Rochester, but has been reprieved by the Governor, has written a letter expressing hopes of soon getting free, and thanking his friends and counsel for their efforts in his behalf.

A man living in a small town in Monroe County, Mich., who had been saved from punishment for smuggling through the payment of several hundred dollars by a friendly farmer of the same town, recently ran off with the wife of his benefactor, and a little money and some valuables.

The Grand Jury in the Recorder's Court, Chicago, have made a special presentment concerning the social evil, in which they protest against the assignment of one women parlor alone, and especially ask that in cases of arrests of the inmates of houses of ill-fame, the owners, agents and manager be arrested, tried and punished under the laws in such cases made and provided.

At a meeting of the directors of the Southern Central Railroad Company, held at Auburn, N. Y., yesterday, it was unanimously resolved to issue $10,000 first mortgage bonds, and complete the entire road at once from the Pennsylvania State line to Lake Ontario.

In the United States District Court of Baltimore, on Thursday, DANIEL GERSCHELD was tried and convicted of dealing in lottery tickets without paying the special tax required by the Internal Revenue laws, and was fined $610, and required to pay the special tax of $100, and stand committed to jail until the same are paid.

Hon. NORRIS WILCOX died at his residence in New-Haven on Wednesday evening. He was Sheriff of New-Haven County in former years, United States Marshal of the State under JACKSON's Administration, and Collector of Customs in New-Haven under President POLK.

The Attorney-General has given an opinion on the repeal by the Legislature of this State of the law providing for $200 tax-exemption to private soldiers, and $1,000 to commissioned officers, called by the recent circular of Comptroller ALLEN to Assessors, directing them to make no exemptions to persons in the military service, on account of the repeal. The Attorney-General decides that the Legislature had no power to annul the contract entered into by the State with the members of the National Guard, and that the exemption is valid so far as it relates to all discharged militiamen and present members of the Guard.

General DULCE is to return at once to Spain from Cuba. By the arrival of the steamship Morro Castle we have important and interesting information of the landing of the filibusters and public sentiment in Havana.

The steamer Mary Sess, bound up the Alabama River, sunk on Thursday, seventy miles above Mobile. She had on board 200 barrels of freight, which went down with her, and was a total loss.

CHARLES SPRINGER, the bond robber, who broke jail at Schenectady on Wednesday, returned on Thursday, at midnight, and gave himself up to the Sheriff.

Hon. REVERDY JOHNSON arrived at Baltimore yesterday morning in the steamship Otis.

During the month of August three different National Educational Conventions will meet in Trenton, N. J.—the Conventions of the State Superintendents, the Normal School principals and teachers, and the teachers of all schools. These will all occur in one week, and it is expected that some of the most prominent educators in the country will be present.

It is proposed to so amend the Constitution of Connecticut that the election of Governor, Congressmen and members of the General Assembly shall be changed to the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November. It is proposed to elect the Governor for two years, and the members of the Assembly for one year, and to commence the sessions of the Legislature on the first Monday of January.

The Maine Democratic State Convention, to nominate a candidate for Governor, has been called to meet in Bangor on Tuesday, June 29.

The semi-annual meeting of the New-York State Eclectic Medical Society will be held on the 24th and 25th of June at Steinway Hall, in this City. Occasional addresses will be delivered by Dr. A. WELDER, President.

The Alabama Claims as a Party Question.

We can understand the desire of politicians to make the Alabama claims a party question. They have begun to think of platforms for the Fall campaign, and are ready to jump at anything which promises to be sensational. The dry details of revenue and financial reform have no relish for them. The progress of the South toward the settled pursuits of industry and peace renders inopportune the anti-rebel declamation which has served so many excellent purposes. They require a question that admits of thunder and lightning—something on which demagogues may expatiate in their appeals to popular passion, with all the fervor of which their patriotic natures are susceptible. What will better suit their purpose than a question of foreign policy, with hated, perfidious Britain as the object of denunciation and attack? The adoption of this method, moreover, will enable stump orators and immaculate candidates to dodge much unpleasant questioning. If a Pennsylvania politician, for example, be asked to reconcile the aggrandisement of certain monopolies with the interests of the revenue or of the public, he will have but to hold up the interrogator as a recipient of British gold to insure the plaudits of his hearers. Or if called upon to propound a policy that shall make the waste places of the nation blossom as the rose, and adapt to great requirements the conduct of the Administration, it will only be necessary to fulminate threats of war against treacherous Britain to silence all cavillers. Nothing could be better than the Alabama claims as a pretext for demagogism. The question as it stands is just the thing. There may be a certain indecency in the delivery of a furious war speech by one who has been appointed to represent the honor and dignity of the nation at a foreign Court; but when party calls, who cares about decency? To what depth may not Mr. CURTIN, or Mr. SUMNER, or Mr. FORNEY descend when party exigencies suggest the adoption of a good war cry? What could be more effective as a plank in an electioneering platform than a sentence running thus: "The mission of the Republican Party is to thrash and humiliate Britain?"—or, "Canada as compensation or fight?"—or, "The immediate payment of five thousand millions or war?" The temptation, it must be admitted, is strong, and we are not surprised to hear that Mr. CURTIN and Mr. FORNEY have fallen victims to its influence.

But will not the common sense of the Republican Party protest against a movement which is fraught with danger to the peace of the country? The peril incident to leaving the Alabama question open has been obvious from the outset. In the question itself there seems no rational cause for serious trouble. But the absence of a settlement is favorable to irritation; what at first is a mere diplomatic difference, may grow into national alienation; and a trivial circumstance may at any time convert a coolness into a quarrel. Among the possibilities consequent upon the continuance of the question is that new talent of a political circles at Washington. The occasion becomes one from which party capital may be extracted. And a controversy which the friends of peace in both countries desire to see ended quickly and quietly, furnishes texts for partisan use, the ultimate application of which none can foresee. The chance for mischief is too seductive for the virtue of demagogues. But has the Republican Party so little moral stamina that it too must yield? Are its claims upon popular support so few and feeble that it must pandering to itself a war party, regardless of the ruin which war would entail upon the country? Are the resources of its statesmanship so impoverished that it must bid for votes by appeals to the prejudices and passion of the multitude?

Playing with war cries is a dangerous game. We do not suppose that the "leading Republican politicians" who have their eyes fixed on the Pennsylvania platform really desire to supersede Mr. MOTLEY by a declaration of hostilities. They simply want a convenient party weapon. But the war whoop is infectious. The Democrats are as well skilled in its use as are the Republicans, and are not likely to allow themselves to be outdone before the constituencies. What, then, is the prospect? If the Republican Party permit itself to be committed by reckless leaders to an extreme war policy on the Alabama question, it is not probable that the Democratic Party will be far behind. And with the two parties bidding each against the other on ground underlaid with volcanic forces, what effect may we expect to see produced upon the demands of our Government or the temper and action of that of Great Britain? Is not peace too precious—are not the interests at stake too momentous—to be jeopardized by the folly or wickedness of politicians?

Reduction of the Debt.

Let the dead have justice as well as the living. The reduction of the debt, carried on vigorously under General GRANT, was begun as vigorously under Mr. LINCOLN, and prosecuted steadily under Mr. JOHNSON. It is a feature of its policy to which the Republican Party may point with pride, and Mr. BOUTWELL, in adhering to it, treads in the footsteps of his predecessors. The net reduction of the debt, since the close of the war, has amounted to $235,771,064, and the merit of having effected it belongs to two administrations. Dividing this sum among the four years over which the reducing process has extended, we have a yearly average of $58,942,766, and we submit that this rate is quite as rapid as comports with the industrial and business interests of the country. The per centage of reduction contemplated in the act of 1862 has been more than maintained. The precise plan indicated has indeed been departed from, but the general object has in the main been accomplished. Any attempt to increase the rate will justify the interference of Congress, and the more strict definition of the boundaries of the Secretary's action. Mr. WELLS, in his reports, estimates the yearly contribution to debt-reduction with which the Government should charge itself at fifty millions. This figure has been attained and passed during the last four years; and with this we should be satisfied.

If it be found that the surplus means at the command of the Government exceed fifty millions yearly, a case will be made out for a reduction of taxes. The debt is not the only legacy of the war that is entitled to attention. The burden of taxation is a legacy still more oppressive, and therefore one that calls still more urgently for mitigation. A revenue required to carry on the Government has been submitted to cheerfully; but the productive and mercantile forces of the nation are not in a condition to contribute many millions annually for the payment of obligations long before they reach maturity. Let Mr. WELLS' fifty millions be added to the current expenditures, if the addition be deemed advantageous to the public credit, but beyond this the Government should not collect a dollar. For there is an interest to be considered more critical than that of the bondholders—the interest of the American people; and the relief they require must be given through diminished taxation. Let us not hear of the Treasury being encumbered with money acquired at serious cost to interests which are identified with the national prosperity.

We look to the present Administration for relief to the tax-payers. Its energy and integrity in the collection of revenue will do much toward determining the measure of its productiveness; while continued retrenchment will widen the margin for a surplus. Next session, then, we hope Congress will be in possession of data that shall facilitate a reduction of taxes to an extent required by the people. That is, all things considered, the best method of dealing with any surplus with which, at the end of its fiscal year, the Treasury may be blessed.

Spanish Affairs—The Policy of the Republicans.

The new Spanish Constitution has been finally adopted in the Cortes by a vote of 214 to 55, and may, therefore, be regarded as definitely established. It has been manifest ever since the elections that the Republican cause in the Cortes has been hopeless, and on their great trial of strength in the division on article 32—that establishing the Monarchy—the party could only muster 71 against 214. The reports by cable during the last few days as to the intentions of the Republicans have been somewhat contradictory—it having been asserted a day or two ago that, while not openly opposing the establishment of a Monarchy, they would unanimously refuse to take the oath which will be demanded from them under the new Constitution. But it appears from more recent intelligence that after the final vote on the adoption of the draft Constitution, the Republicans declared their intention of abiding by and supporting the slenderness which provide for the establishment of a Monarchy, notwithstanding their avowed dissatisfaction with their object. The explanation of the apparent discrepancy is probably to be sought in the numerical difference in the two votes. On both occasions the majority was the same—214—but on the latter, the Republican minority only amounted to 55, or 16 less than on the first test vote. It may be presumed, therefore, that while the bulk of the party is prepared to acquiesce in the will of the majority, a small section has determined to inaugurate a policy of abstention by refusing to participate even in the division.

We are glad to find, however that the leaders of the party possess sufficient moderation and good sense to refrain from the useless and pernicious policy which was at first attributed to them. In no case could they have, by that means, forwarded their own ends, but their course must have inevitably tended to distract the nation, and retard a peaceful settlement of affairs. The Republicans, even when united, are numerically less than one-fourth of the Cortes, and a policy of abstention would only have resulted in perpetuating the present dangerous interregnum, and affording still further opportunities to the Carlists and Isabellinos for prosecuting their respective intrigues. At the present moment, when all the statesmanship of the country, and the undivided attention of the Cortes, are urgently required in order to save the national credit, and reduce the frightful deficit which threatens to overwhelm it, it would have been peculiarly unfortunate had the Republican Party, which comprises the representatives of the largest commercial cities in Spain, suffered itself to be induced to hold aloof en masse from public affairs because the majority was not at present prepared to adopt its views. And we trust that even the small section of this party which seems to have abstained from this final division will ere long perceive that they can serve their country far better by an active participation in its affairs than by hopeless isolation. While the finances of Spain are in their present condition, and while so many and so important questions are pressing for a solution, she can ill afford to lose the services of any party, however small.

Our Late Minister in Belgium.

Our Washington correspondent recently announced the resignation of Hon. HENRY S. SANFORD, our Minister in Belgium. While the discussion of his claims, when nominated as Minister to Spain, occupied the Senate and the Press, we refrained from expressing any opinion on the subject; but now that Mr. SANFORD has voluntarily withdrawn from the public service, we deem it an act of justice to refer to his career and character. At a time like this, when reforms in our civil service are proposed, it is, to say the least, very inexpedient to ignore the real merits of any foreign representative, especially one who carefully prepared himself by legal and linguistic training, as well as by economical studies, for diplomatic duties. Apart from personal and partisan opposition, we ascribe the vague and unjust comments upon Mr. SANFORD, which have been uttered in the Senate and by the Press, as the result of misapprehension of facts. Mr. SANFORD offended many persons, including some high in office, during the war, by his activity outside of his special province of official duty; but what these persons regard as unauthorized interference, originated often in special orders from the State Department, of which the Minister at Brussels was made the recipient—partly because of his central position and certain facilities he enjoyed, and partly because of his zeal for the Union cause, and his generous devotion thereto. However, therefore, he may have urged less alert and successful agents of the Government, he did excellent service, which the people should remember. In 1847 Mr. SANFORD accompanied RALPH INGERSOLL, as attaché, to St. Petersburg; he subsequently received the degree of Doctor of Law from the University of Heidelberg; for five years he acted most acceptably and efficiently as Chargé d'Affaires and Secretary of Legation at Paris, and resigned rather than have a public quarrel with Minister MASON on the Diplomatic Costume question. Congress soon after published Mr. SANFORD's elaborate and able report on the penal code of Europe. He was honorably associated with several important negotiations of our Government in Central and South America. During Mr. SANFORD's residence at Brussels he has expended annually two or three times the amount of his salary in a way to honor the mission and benefit his countrymen—whether artists, invalids or men of affairs. The first two and a half years of the war he contributed his entire salary in aid of our soldiers. These are facts; and they should be remembered, especially when not a single charge affecting the integrity or efficiency of Mr. SANFORD has ever been made. Mr. SANFORD's record is one of which he and his many friends may justly be proud.

The Ocean Mails.

Although the prospects of "Ocean Penny Postage," which looked very promising a few weeks ago, when Mr. BRIGHT was "demanding," and Mr. REVERDY JOHNSON "hoping"—in accordance with the genius of their respective natures—that it should become the basis of the mail arrangements between England and America, are less bright just at present, it is satisfactory to find that the mail service has been readjusted by the British Post Office on a plan which certainly possesses the merit of establishing a more regular and equable delivery of mails in New-York than we have hitherto enjoyed. The consideration of the whole question of contracts and subsidies across open competition and low rates, seems, according to the latest accounts, to have been adjourned indefinitely; but as long as the present system is to be maintained, there could not be a better arrangement than that just made by the British postal authorities. The Marquis of HARTINGTON the other night, while openly admitting that the present steamship mail contracts were likely to be the last, expressed his doubts as to whether an efficient service could be maintained at the rate of ocean penny postage. As long as the contracts last, however, there is nothing to complain of as far as the actual conveyance of letters goes. Three mails for New-York are now dispatched from England every week—one by the Cunard steamers leaving Liverpool on Saturday and Queenstown on Sunday, another by the Bremen steamers touching at Southampton on Tuesday, and a third by the Inman steamers leaving Liverpool on Thursday and Queenstown on Friday. The week is thus pretty equally divided—Scotland, Ireland and the North of England having a few hours' advantage by the two Liverpool lines, while London and the South of England are specially accommodated by the forwarding of one mail a week from Southampton, distant only two hours and a half from the metropolis. The average speed of the boats of the three lines is nearly equal, and we thus get the benefit of far greater regularity in the arrival of English mails than heretofore. The steamers of the Hamburg-American line, which touched at Southampton on Friday before the alteration in the Inman sailing day, now touch at Havre on Friday, thus giving us the advantage of a weekly direct mail from France, in addition to that carried fortnightly from Brest by the Compagnie Générale Transatlantique. Altogether, as far as is compatible with the subsidy system, the new arrangement of the European mails is well calculated to serve commercial interests and private convenience on both sides the Atlantic. In process of time, perhaps, the English Government may deign to adopt our system—that of forwarding a mail by every steamer belonging to a responsible Company that is capable of performing the conditions of the service.

Annexation in Nova Scotia.

Mr. MURRAY's resolution, and more particularly Mr. MURRAY's preamble, which the Halifax House of Assembly considered on Tuesday, has at least the merit of perfectly plain language. It begins by "most firmly denying the right" of the Imperial Government "to force a free people into any connections without their consent;" but, at the same time, with a rather doubtful concession, it very pressingly "admits the right of the Imperial Government to withdraw their protection." It declares that the old Government was "forcibly changed without the consent of the people," whose "petitions have been treated with contempt;" that the Dominion has brought "financial disaster and oppressive taxation," and made the Nova Scotians "a degraded people." And, in fine, "whereas, our principal commercial trade always will be, naturally, with the United States of America," and, whereas, there is "great injustice in keeping this here-before loyal colony in a hated union," therefore Her Majesty is asked "that our beloved institution be restored to us, or that Her Majesty will be graciously pleased to absolve us from our allegiance to the British throne!"

What final disposition will be made of this proposition remains to be seen; it is now thought probable that it will be withdrawn; but its very offering carries moral weight and suggestions. Two gentlemen rose at once, on its presentation, to indorse its language. Its author declares "it is not an annexation resolution,"—but certainly it goes part way toward being a "secession" resolution. Are not Messrs. SUMNER and CHANDLER alarmed, lest there be nothing left of Canada, ere long, for them to "invade?"

The Judges and the Bar.

The proceedings before Judge CARDOZO in the case of the women PEARSALL and O'CONNOR are likely to be productive of good, bad as they were in themselves. Let us state the case briefly as it occurred from first to last. The Judge concluded that by imprisoning these women he could compel another woman, their sister, to bring back a child which she had carried away, and which, as he says, he wished to save from an evil life. They lay in prison for a week without any examination into the charges against them. Their affidavits were then presented to him by a lawyer, to whom the Judge said something with the intent to deter him from taking up the case. What it was that he said is disputed, but in our view of the case it makes little difference what it was. The other Judges had previously, at his request, given a promise that they would not inquire into the matter on habeas corpus, and so the habeas corpus which was obtained was made returnable before Judge CARDOZO. He, instead of giving the case the immediate examination which the law commands, adjourned the proceedings for a week because he was so busy. On the adjourned day he had called around him several other members of the Bar, to give him countenance as "friends of the Court." He limited the inquiry to a single question, whether the women had been refused an examination; and seemed to think that when it appeared that no personal request for an examination had been made of him by the women themselves, although they had been kept under lock and key by his order all the time, it was shown that they had not been deprived of an examination. The habeas corpus was then withdrawn; and inasmuch as there was little reason to expect that the Judge would decide that he had refused an examination, the withdrawal was doubtless wise. An examination of the women was then had, at which no testimony was given before him except what was embraced in the affidavits which were first presented to him in their behalf. Opportunity was given to one of the three "friends of the Court" to make a violent assault upon the lawyer who had dared to set himself against the Court, and opportunity to defend himself was refused to the party thus assailed; and the next day the women were discharged from their imprisonment of sixteen days—an imprisonment thus admitted by the Judge himself to have been unjustifiable.

These are the main facts of the case. There were very many incidents of it well worthy of attention, but we pass them by to speak of the good which we think will come of it. We think, in the first place, that all parties concerned in it will have learned a lesson, unless they are so foolish as not to learn by experience.

Judge CARDOZO should learn from it that a Judge does well when he confines himself to the duties cast upon him by the law, and that when he overstepts the law, even though it may be for a good purpose, he is placing himself in a position sure to prove troublesome. He should learn, also, that the community is not wholly given up to wrong, and the Bar is not wholly demoralized; and that when a Judge so far overstepts the line of his duty as to endeavor in any way to prevent a lawyer from defending a client, he is treading upon very dangerous ground; he is exposing himself to the scorn of a public sentiment, from which the countenance of no three "friends," however able, is sufficient to shield him.

We think the three gentlemen who took the unenviable position of "friends of the Court" in this case, will also have learned something. We doubt whether they will allow themselves to be placed in such a position again. They must feel that their presence was made entirely unnecessary, for if the Judge was going to discharge the women on those affidavits it would have been wiser for him to have done it when the affidavits were first presented, and have saved himself and them the trouble and the unpleasantness which followed. We say unpleasantness, for we are sure that the position of attacking a brother lawyer, for defending persons admitted to have been unjustly accused, cannot be a pleasant one for all those gentlemen.

The other Judges, too, should profit by their experience. They will see that their promise was a pledge not to perform a duty; and that the result has been that two persons have been imprisoned for more than a fortnight, on a charge of which it is now admitted that they must be held to be innocent. Judge MCCUNN, as we see, since these proceedings were ended, declined to adjourn a habeas corpus case, because it involved the liberty of the citizen. We doubt not that the ears of the Judges of the Supreme Court will be as quick as Judge MCCUNN's, and that such a pledge as was given in this case will not soon be repeated.

In all these ways we think good may come out of this matter. There are not wanting indications of a yet greater good. The thoughts of the better men among the lawyers have been directed by it to the dangers which are threatened by favoritism and arbitrary action on the part of Judges, and to the means by which those dangers may be checked and averted. Whether the time has yet fully come for the adoption of such means may not be certain. But the time will come before long when there will be an association of the better members of the Bar for the purposes of resisting by combined strength influences which are already far too powerful to be successfully opposed by individuals alone. Individuals may sometimes accomplish much, as Mr. TOWNSEND has done in this case; but there are some things which they cannot do. And in these days when the power of association is so mighty, it cannot be long before that power is made use of in this direction, or else we have fallen upon evil days, indeed.

MINOR TOPICS.

It now begins to look worse than ever for the Spanish power in Cuba. The sudden resignation of the Captain-General under anti-pressure, the savage demonstrations of the loyal volunteers, the squabbles between the Spanish leaders, the compulsory resignation of a number of the principal functionaries, the demoralization of the Spanish party, the antagonism between the regular and volunteer troops, these and other details reported by the Havana cable within the last few days, betoken a breaking up of the ground on which the Spanish authority rests. We have all the signs that ordinarily appear in connection with a falling cause. And if to these we add the facts that the revolutionists are now rapidly supplying themselves with arms, that the leaders are learning the art of war, and their followers acquiring the courage to fight, that the prevalent anarchy in the island is all in favor of the insurrectionary side, that the hot season gives them a new advantage, and that in all respects they are in better condition now than ever before,—we shall see that the prospects of the revolution are brightening as those of the Spanish party are becoming hopeless.

Judge CARDOZO evidently means to be fair. In the Fish-Bushnell conspiracy case, yesterday, he was gracious enough to say, in granting the request of Mr. STOUGHTON to reply to the statement of Judge EMORY, "I never arrest an argument so long as I am satisfied counsel have anything to say which will throw any light upon the case." If the Judge had practiced this in the famous case of CARDOZO vs. TOWNSEND, it would have added to his reputation. Now lawyers only smile at the speech and think of it in connection with the same Judge's remarks about "sleepless nights" spent in cogitating about the depravity of Mrs. PEARSALL and Miss O'CONNOR.

While it is pleasing to see that Secretary BOUTWELL is able to report a steady reduction of the national debt, it is no less pleasing to see that, in many of the States, there is a reduction of the State debt. The last exhibit in this direction is by the Governor of New-Hampshire, who reports a reduction during the year of $200,000. As the whole debt of the State is but little over three millions, it will, at this annual rate of reduction, be entirely wiped out in nine years. What does Governor HOPKMAN say to some suggestions in the way of contracting the debt of this State?

The Chittenden will-case in Surrogate TUCKER's Court reveals a custom, but we are sorry to say not a singular feature, in litigations of this character. The guardian of the young daughter of the deceased testator is endeavoring to break the will which grants her about one-half of an estate of $200,000, the other half going to the testator's widow, and the step-mother of the young lady. The curious feature is that this is being done against the wishes of the ward and daughter, and one wonders why it is brought at all. It is as yet a profound mystery. There is a famous case reported by one BRICKNESS of JAMAICA vs. Jamaica, which ends only when the estate is absorbed and the contestants are dead. We trust the young ward will live to become of age before her estate is wasted in lawyers' fees.

We are glad to see that house-building is still going on throughout the City with unusual activity. The list of forty "proposed new buildings," which we gave yesterday, run the whole number, for the year, up to 428. In Brooklyn, too, the builders are busy, while in the towns round about New-York, for a radius of fifty miles, houses of all sizes, shapes and prices, are appearing with great rapidity.

There will doubtless be great temptation presented to REVERDY JOHNSON to resume speech-making in this country. He will be called on to defend the treaty which was rejected by the Senate, and for the negotiation of which he has been so much abused. He will be called on to explain his personal conduct in the matter, and to justify himself for taking upon condemned by the votes of his countrymen. It is to be hoped he will resist these temptations, and refuse to take any further part in complicating the negotiations between the Governments of England and America.

We suppose our readers understand that the "Reformed Church of America," which has been holding its General Synod in Philadelphia, is the denomination heretofore known as the "Reformed Dutch Church." Last year this ancient American denomination, the principal power of which has always been in this State, and which was founded here by the old Hollandish settlers, resolved to change its name by striking out the word Dutch.

In Virginia the negroes have asked the military authorities to issue an order giving them the same rights as whites in cars and steamboats; but General CAREY declined to interfere in the matter. In Washington the Common Council have passed an ordinance compelling theatres, and all licensed places of amusement, to admit colored persons to every part of the house, on the same terms as white persons. This is a step in advance of anything in the Northern States.

The remarkable statements made by our Toronto correspondent yesterday, respecting the movement for independence in Canada, gave a new interest to the recent debates in the House of Commons on Colonial policy. He not only mentioned the newspapers that openly or covertly advocated it, but named the prominent politicians who are more or less favorable to it, and showed, moreover, that a large proportion of the mercantile body would support it. When that astute and far-seeing statesman, Ex-Secretary SEWARD, traveled through the British Provinces many years ago, he wrote a series of letters to the Albany Evening Journal, in which he took the ground that the tendency of events and affairs in Canada were not toward annexation with this country, but toward political independence, and the building up of a separate and respectable Power.

On the 23d ult. a brakeman was crushed to death while coupling cars in Bennington, Vt. A short time previous another met the same fate in Worcester, Mass. Later still, another was cruelly killed in Jersey City, and during a short period of time three men have been thus killed in Somerville, N. J. Numerous other instances might be cited, as but few days pass that an able workingman is not mutilated or killed in the performance of this duty that necessity ruthlessly exposes him to. In the ordinary manner of coupling cars a man must stand in front of the stationary car, while the engine or train is backed against it,—it being necessary to steer the link connected with the hunter of one car into the aperture of the hunter of the other, and force a pin through as the hunters meet. In case the shock of the cars breaks either hunter, the man is crushed. In case of too great momentum, and the stationary car gives way, the man is often buried from his feet and run over, thus adding variety to the style of death. It is therefore gratifying that a simple method which avoids the exposure of life has just been invented, and, having been approved by leading railroad men, is now being adopted. This invention consists of a simple link and hook, so constructed as to act automatically, thus preserving scores of lives annually, and greatly facilitating the shackling of cars, thereby economizing much time.

Despite all the efforts of the English and other nations to foster the growth of cotton in India, Egypt, &c., the place of America has never been really filled, and returning industry at the South will find a plentiful demand for its productions. The latest returns of the British Board of Trade show that there are now 24,800 people less earning their living in cotton manufacture than there were before the Rebellion; whereas, if the English cotton factories had increased during the seven years since 1861 at the same rate they did the five years preceding, the cotton manufacturing population of England would be 176,800 more than it is now. So enormous is the loss which the stoppage of American cotton inflicted upon British industry. The cost of a new war would be something frightful to both parties.

AMUSEMENTS.

Theatrical and Musical.

ENTERTAINMENTS OF THE DAY AND EVENING.

Except at Wallack's Theatre, where rehearsals of the new pantomime occupy the mornings, there will be matinées at almost all the City houses this day. "La Périchole" will be sung at the Fifth-avenue Theatre; "The Lady of Lyons" will be played at Booth's; "Patrie" will be enacted at the Grand Opera-House; "Sinbad" will be represented at Niblo's; "Robinson Crusoe" will be performed at Wood's; "Hiccory Diccory Dock" will entertain the frequenters of the Olympic; "Ixion" will be rendered at the Waverley, and Mr. LEVERINGWELL will play in "Too Much for Good Nature" and in "Clorinda" at the Tammany. The usual organ concert may be attended at the Plymouth Church, Mr. JOHN ZUNDEL, organist of the church, will play. In the evening the last representation of "Patrie" and of "Robinson Crusoe" may be attended.

EX-PRESIDENT JOHNSON.

His Speech in Clarksville—His Opinions of Jeff. Davis and Sumner, Washington and Grant.

From the Cincinnati Commercial.

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn., Wednesday, June 2, 1869.

Ex-President JOHNSON yesterday addressed an assemblage of 3,000 persons for three and a half hours. Governor ANDERSON, of Ohio, Senator FOWLER and other prominent individuals occupied seats on the stand. Mr. JOHNSON was introduced by Hon. GUL. HENRY, and was enthusiastically cheered. He took the same grounds as in former speeches. Comparing JEFF. DAVIS to SUMNER, he considered the latter the greatest enemy to the Constitution, for though the former fought for secession, he still claimed the existence of the Government, while the latter was for overthrowing the Constitution and establishing a despotism. Alluding to President GRANT, he said that they call GRANT a second WASHINGTON. Let us see how he measures up to him. In his first inaugural WASHINGTON said: "Time and difficulty of the trust in which the voice of my countrymen have called me, being sufficient cause to withdraw, in the wisest and most experienced citizen, a distrust of his powers to carry on the great and responsible work he had to perform." GRANT, in his first inaugural, GRANT said: "The responsibilities of my position are great, but I assume them without fear." Thence he first contrasted the diffidence and dignity of the elder, and the arrogance and assumption of the younger WASHINGTON did not enter the Executive Mansion as have a grand gift establishment; but now he is the second WASHINGTON! He was surrounded by one man, whom he afterward appointed Secretary of the Treasury, with a $50,000 check; by his father-in-law, who had a deed to a fine furnished house in Philadelphia; by his Attorney-General that was to be, with an expensive library; and so on ad infinitum, each one that hoped for office coming with an expensive gift to purchase it. Here is a second comparison: The real father of his country was for the preservance of the principles and the good of his country, while the second WASHINGTON was already looking out for himself. He concluded by saying: "I think the Radical Party are disintegrating and crumbling away. I am opposed to making a national bank for their benefit on its death. The office-seekers are not enough for all, there is not sufficient scarce and things lying around loose have been all picked up. Now they are filled with dissensions and disorganization, and are fighting for the little residuum of plunder. Let us give it to them now, and let them come home upon us, and hatch their death by adhesion, by bold, manly, courageous adherence to the essential principles of true republican government."

WASHINGTON.

The Depository Banks—The Proposed Reduction—Washington Politics—A Contribution for the Confederates in Local Office—The New-York Superviscrship and the Sixth District Collectorship.

Special Dispatches to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Friday, June 4, 1869.

The list of National Depository banks is being carefully revised by the Secretary of the Treasury, and the determination to reduce the number to one in each Congressional District is being inexorably carried out. This will reduce the number of depositories from 500 to about 300, and there is consequently considerable perturbation among many of the country banks, where there is more than one depository in a district. The list for New-York State has been finished, but the revision of the entire list will occupy some days yet.

WASHINGTON POLITICS—A POLITICAL CATECHISM.

The political forces of Washington have received themselves into two leading elements striving for the mastery. One, the colored element, under the leadership of Mayor BOWEN, which has just accomplished a successful raid upon theatres, operas, &c., and the other the woman element, led by Professor WILCOX, who has begun a raid upon all candidates for office, and to-day issued a threatening catechism, in which he comes down on all expectants with the following pertinent and suggestive questions:

First—Will you, if elected, use your influence to induce Congress to enfranchise the women of this District?

Second—Will you, if elected, use your influence to secure women a fair share of official patronage?

Third—Will you, if elected, use your influence to protect women in the free practice of all honest employments.

The Mayor has the strongest forces, but the Professor has the most exuberant courage, and it is doubtful who will come out ahead.

THE NEW-YORK REVENUE SERVICE.

The New-York Supervisorship and the Sixth District Collectorship are in statu quo. It is well understood here that the Commissioner of Internal Revenue desires the retention of Mr. DUTCHER, and it is also stated that Senator CONKLING has been assured that he should not be removed. A new candidate has turned up in the person a Mr. BRUSLIN, of Indiana, strongly indorsed by Senators MORTON, FENTON and CONKLING, for "a leading position in the Revenue service in New-York City." This is understood to have pointed toward the Thirty-second District in the first place, but that failing, his aspirations tended toward the Supervisor's place, and to hedge for probable failure there, he has finally put in an application for the Sixth District Collectorship, for which there are only seven other candidates, to wit: Geo. W. Dilks, Ex-Alderman White, J. A. Richmond, N. L. Stratton, Colonel Burke, Colonel B. T. Morgan and a Mr. Lewis. RICHMOND prefers to be Supervisor; but if not, will take the Collector's place, if he can get it. The pressure for a change is very strong. But Mr. DELANO resists it thus far, and it turns on the Secretary and the President.

Dispatches to the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Friday, June 4.

THREATENED STRIKE OF THE BRICKLAYERS.

The Bricklayers' Union, at a meeting held here last night, advocated the immediate strike of the bricklayers at the Navy-yard, unless two colored workmen there employed be dismissed. Some of the members expressed their doubts as to the practicability of "striking" against the Government in the matter, and throwing them out of work; but the majority declared against them, holding that they could afford to maintain their position, as not more than ten or a dozen members—all the force at present employed in the yard—would be affected. The proceedings were secret. It is understood, however, that a resolution to this effect was adopted.

THE INDIANS.

The Commissioner of Indian Affairs has sent a telegram to the Superintendent of Indian Affairs in Kansas directing him to report to the Indian Office the true state of affairs in that locality, and keep the Office thoroughly posted relative to all Indian depredations that may hereafter occur. The only information regarding Indian outrages that has reached the Office has been such as could be gleaned from the newspapers.

THE CONSCIENCE FUND.

A man in Trenton, who formerly sent $100 to the conscience fund of the Treasury, inclosed $60 more to-day, which he thinks he has kept from the Government long enough.

THE FINANCE BUREAU.

The Postmaster-General has removed ten clerks in the Finance Bureau and appointed others in their places.

REVENUE RECEIPTS.

The receipts of the internal revenue to-day were over a million.

CURRENCY IN THE TREASURY.

The currency balance in the Treasury is now about $6,000,000.

THE NAVY DEPARTMENT.

Several clerks and six out of nine watchmen at the Navy Department have been dismissed, owing to the reduced appropriations by Congress.

NAVAL.

Assistant Surgeon R. S. Mobbs has been detached from the Naval Hospital at New-York and ordered to the hospital at Pensacola, relieving Assistant Surgeon Cook, who will be ordered to the Dunderberg, now at Philadelphia. Lieutenant Thomas F. Wilson has been detached from the Hydrographic Office and ordered to the Kearsarge. He has been succeeded by Lieutenant Benjamin Dutton, who has been detached from the Lancaster. Midshipman Arthur C. Smith has resigned.

THE PORTLAND TRAGEDY.

Further Developments and Particulars—Condition of Mrs. Baker—Parker Has an Interview with his Wife.

From the Portland (Me.) Argus, June 5.

The melancholy shooting affray on the Western Promenade, Tuesday evening, was the all-absorbing topic of conversation in this City yesterday. Public sympathy acts strongly in favor with the woman, who, driven to distraction, decided to take the life of her whom she considered the destroyer of her domestic peace, the father of her husband's affections. That Mrs. PARKER had contemplated something desperate is apparent in the fact that she had provided herself with the revolver with which she did the deed, and that she had threatened vengeance upon her rival. But that she had fully resolved to do it is not so certain. It seems that she had taken a letter from Mrs. BAKER to her husband, proposing an immediate elopement to California, she answered the letter herself, and went to the residence of her counsel in the western section of the city during the evening and was very solicitous to consult him. He was unable to do her bidding, but had knowledge that her husband was with the women BAKER, and accordingly proceeded in quest of him on the promenade, just meeting her rival, all of that terrible business which had been gnawing her heart-strings and sapping her life away, burst forth, and she half entertained idea of vengeance became a fixed and deadly purpose. The women of remarkable character, the fervent wife and kind mother, the same in a moment a maniac. The pistol was pointed, the trigger pulled, and the deadly ball did the work.

It is currently and we believe correctly stated that Mr. PARKER was with Mrs. BAKER as his wife approached, but wishing to avoid a "scene," which he supposed would be the only result, he ran from the seat down the bank close at hand.

The Advertiser of last evening says:

"Dr. SYLVESTER informed us that the surgeon says it may elapse before any opinion can be formed as to the probable result of Mrs. BAKER'S wounds. She is now to-day as unconscious but not in a dangerous state. The ball entered just in, and the patient was quite comfortable. One of the bullets passed out at the back of the ear, the other the hip, and is lodged in the direction, down into the fowels. PARKER had an interview with his wife at the City Marshal's office just before noon to-day. On his part the interview was conducted in a coarse and almost brutal manner, and he showed no sympathy with his wife's misfortune. He left for Boston last night when she attempted to kill herself in the Marshal's office say she gave unmistakable indications of insanity. We learn that she was conveyed, early about two weeks since, and that since then she has at times acted very strangely."

The wounded woman begged piteously when shot to be taken home, but there was not one who would volunteer to help her. Mr. PARKER "have shot me," replied "And I've shot me in the heart over a year ago, and I will be avenged for the wound over there," and she went on and told in terrible terms several instances where she was ill-treated by her husband on Mrs. BAKER'S account, while Lewis, were frightfully alarmed. The circumstances related, with the whole affair will appear in our Court report when the parties are examined before a Magistrate.

Mrs. BAKER passed a very comfortable day yesterday. Although intelligence is scarce as yet set in, Dr. SYLVESTER thinks she is not out of danger. She says little for herself, but denies positively that Mr. PARKER was with her at the time she was shot. Mrs. PARKER is entirely satisfied, we learn, with the course she took, and far from wishes a recovery of her victim.

OBITUARY.

The Right Hon. Lord Brougham—English Statesman and Author.

The death, at the advanced age of 89, of the Right Hon. Lord BROUGHAM, an English statesman and author of considerable note, is announced by a cable dispatch.

LORD BROUGHAM, better known by his Scottish name of Sir JOHN GILL HOUSTOUN, was born on the 27th of June, 1786, near Bristol, and was the eldest son of Sir BENJAMIN HOUSTOUN. He was educated at Westminster and at Trinity College, Cambridge, where he took his degree in 1808. While at Cambridge he contracted an intimacy with Lord BYRON, and, even after his graduation, he accompanied the poet in his travels in Turkey and Greece, and other parts of Southern Europe, and subsequently in Switzerland and Italy; and after his return to England he published an account of these travels in a book which he called A Journey through Albania and Other Provinces of Turkey, with Lord Byron, which was highly commended. This, however, was not his first work, for in 1809 appeared, with his name, a collection of compositions, under the title of Institutions and Transactions from the Classics, with Original Poems. Four years after the publication of his Journal he brought out an elaborate work, entitled The Last Reign of Napoleon. This was in two volumes, and gave a complete and entertaining description of the events of the "Hundred Days," of which he was an intensely interested eye-witness. He also published Historical Illustrations of the Fourth Canto of Childe Harold, and was a frequent contributor to Blackwood, Fraser's, the Westminster Review, and other periodicals.

His first move in politics was in 1810, or thereabout, when he published his "Letters to an Englishman," which were tinged with strong radical opinions, and contained such a severe attack on the House of Commons, that he was imprisoned in Newgate on a charge of having committed a breach of privilege. These letters and his imprisonment brought him prominently before the public, and, upon his release, he was taken up by the electors of Westminster, who, in spite of the strenuous and animated opposition of the Whigs, returned him to Parliament after a memorable contest. In Parliament he showed himself a ready speaker and an energetic reformer, but his radical opinions became so far modified that in 1830 he entered the Cabinet of Earl Grey as Lord Keeper of Wax. In 1830 he was made Secretary of State for Ireland. The next year he was returned from Nottingham, which he represented till 1841; and he sat for HAWICK for a few years previous to his elevation to the peerage as Lord BROUGHAM, which was in 1830. In the Cabinet of Lord MELBOURNE he was President of the Board of Control, and Chief Commissioner of Woods and Forests; and in the Russell Administration in 1846-52 he again held the former position.

Lord BROUGHAM married a daughter of the Marquis of TWEEDDALE. He has taken no active part in public affairs since his elevation to the Upper House.

Mrs. Vernon, Actress.

The death of Mrs. VERNON, who but two months ago was an active member of the company of Wallack's Theatre, is announced. The deceased artiste, whose maiden name was JANE MARGARET FISHER, was born at Brighton, in England, seventy-seven years ago. In 1807 she came to this City, and in the first Autumn of her sojourn acted at the Bowery Theatre. She was thenceforward before the footlights until within a few weeks. Married in October of 1827 to Mr. GEORGE VERNON, an actor, she subsequently performed at the old Chatham Theatre, and went thence, a widow, to the old Park. Her final appearance at the latter house was effected in December, 1847. Afterward, she played at BURTON'S, then at the old Broadway, and then at WALLACK'S, where she remained until April 5, last. On the evening of that day she bade farewell to the mimic world in which she had so long been a dweller. Though advanced in years, Mrs. VERNON had no rivals in her line of stage business, to the perfect performance of which she brought great ability and immense experience. Her loss, though not unlooked for, is a serious one, and one that will be felt quite keenly in private life, also, where the actress was a loved and honored lady.

JAPANESE IMMIGRANTS.

Arrival of Three Families in San Francisco—Several More Expected.

From the San Francisco Alta California, May 27.

HERR SCHNELL, a Prussian gentleman, for ten years past resident in the Northern Principalities of Japan, has arrived in San Francisco with three Japanese families. These families are the precursors of forty Japanese families now on the way for our port, and of a further accession of eighty families, making in all one hundred and twenty families, or say, four hundred persons are coming here for permanent settlement. They are mostly silk cultivators and manufacturers; some are tea culturists. They bring with them some trees of the Mulberry silk, three years old. The trees are kept in tubs in the country. They bring a great number of mulberry plants of the large variety, useful for a thousand purposes. They are twelve feet high. Also, 800 pounds of wax trees, four feet high and one inch in diameter. Also, 800 pounds of tea nuts. The seed of the tea plant is a small nut.

Herr SCHNELL was Interpreting Secretary to the Prussian Legation, and latterly Minister of Finance to the Northern Principalities at war with the Mikado. He is completely master of the Japanese language, and was attached to Prince Iniu, under whom he held an important command. The defeat of the North has obliged him to seek shelter for peace and occupation. It is not improbable that three Princes will follow him and share his fortunes. Herr SCHNELL possessed 150 retainers and their families. They look to him for means of living, and he charges himself with their care, support and guidance in a way to conform to the law and usages of our country. They are not serfs, but free. If the Princes come they may bring many more industrial families. They are highly educated and polished gentlemen, with families brought up in the highest refinement. They fully comprehend our laws and respect and will conform to them.

It should be understood that the Japanese contract themselves with dignity; but they are average to repel insult and imposition. They cannot safely be treated as Chinamen often are. They come with their families; they bring skill and industry to develop our resources. Herr SCHNELL means to buy Government land, not in the valleys, which are unsuited, but in the cheaper hill or mountain lands. These gravelly loams are most adapted to the healthiest growth of silk-worms. Silk is an article of great value, and essentially it is an axiom. Hills for the tree, dales for the coarse." He knew that the trees were stocked with common mulberry trees in nursery, with very few set out for permanent plantation, so he has brought his own trees. He does not intend to lose seasons till the trees, now three years old, have another full year's growth. The Japanese do not steam either eggs of cocoons red, like ours, or cutting scarce rooted in the nursery. Three feet is the standard height of plantation mulberries in Japan. They never have the stem, but the branches are allowed to grow close to the ground, thus giving the best protection from sun-scald. Their mode of feeding is to cut off the entire branch, instead of plucking the leaves, and thus the worm has always a cleanly feeding place. We are not feeding ourselves and we give it a second year. Herr SCHNELL said emphatically that "the Japanese cocoons this year if he could find them of unexhaustable quality. But such as are at Neumann's exhibition would not answer at all. They are fit only for shoddy.

Child Murder—Trial of a Physician in Michigan.

The Detroit Post publishes a report "in all its baldness and baldness," of the trial of Dr. JOHN DOY, of Battle Creek, at Marshall, Mich., on the charge of having procured an abortion upon one CARLOTTA GRAVES, the principal witnesses being the woman and IRA GRAVES, her husband. Commenting upon the trial the Post says:

"We publish, elsewhere, the testimony of a case in trial at Marshall, Mich. One of those professional panderers to this crime is now being tried for murdering an infant five months old. We use the term in its literal, not its general sense. The father and mother of this child have been brought to the witness stand, and have detailed with great minuteness, and they have corroborated each other, the conspiracy, the time, the means, the weapons of the assassination. The story as told by these child murderers is that they made a regular bargain with the physician, who is a "gentleman" and that he came at the appointed time and murdered their infant. They had been married but five months, and so were had had any children. They seem to have possessed some property. It can hardly be said that they were oppressed with the burdens of a large family. The father is described himself as being discouraged at first by the high price charged for murdering the little fellow. He wanted to get it done cheap. Of course, it is wise to cost as much as would be required to rear the child, nothing would be enough. Considering that "it was such a little one," he thought $50 was enough; but finally the kind-hearted "physician," not to be too hard upon a poor man, compromised at $60. The father, after offering his note, live stock, &c., finally mortgaged his farm for the requisite amount, and his child was done to death, according to agreement.

The Aristocracy of Sex—Note from Miss Susan B. Anthony.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Will the TIMES please publish Mrs. STANTON'S—not Miss ANTHONY'S—resolution precisely as she gave it at the National Woman's Suffrage meeting, held at the Women's Bureau, Tuesday, June 1. You will observe that it is the establishment of an aristocracy of sex, not race, that Mrs. STANTON protests against.

Resolved, That while we relish heavy cog-wheel cutting as much as any, we feel constrained to protest against the Fifteenth Amendment becoming law, by its passage in Congress, the Republican Party will be perpetuating the aristocracy of sex; the most old, and dangerous aristocracy of all ages, the most universal in its influence, and the last one to be assigned since Government had an existence.

It is true that by the Fifteenth Amendment the Republican Party has elevated the very last of the most ignorant and degraded classes of men to the position of master over the very first and most educated and elevated classes of women. It isn't that Mrs. STANTON objects to the voting of ignorant men per se, but that she most strenuously protests against the principle and the practice that gives them civil and political superiority over the women by their side, not only, but over the educated and cultivated as well.

SUSAN B. ANTHONY.

NEW-YORK, June 4, 1869.

Work for Women in New-England.

From the Boston Traveller, June 3.

While we have thousands of females in the city complaining that they are compelled to toil for insufficient pay, a cry of a different nature comes to us from all the country towns of New-England. Here, women are seeking for work; away from the city there is a demand for women willing to work. In the villages there is a scarcity of girls for domestic employments, and in the smaller factories and shops, and the farmers want girls to make butter and cheese, and do other household work. Such employment is not very genteel, but it gives robust health, with this remuneration. Those engaged in it, have no opportunity to promenade in silks which they cannot afford, and little desire to follow the fashions or the follies of the rich, but they are enabled to lay by money against days of sickness, or old age, and are quite likely to find good husbands, if matrimonially inclined.

As the State is not likely to provide homes in the country to which Miss PHEBE and her sisters of the labor-reform movement can retire to recuperate themselves in the season when employment is scarce and wages are low, they may find it for their advantage, by and by, to listen to this call for help which comes to them from all parts of New-England.

The Republican Split in Tennessee.

From the Memphis (Tenn.) Post, June 1.

A letter appears in the KNOXVILLE Whig from Mr. W. M. WILLIOTT, of Cleveland, suggesting that both heads of the contending factions withdraw, and that the party in this State unite upon Hon. HORACE MAYNARD. It would afford us sincere congratulation if such an adjustment of our difficulties could be brought about. We look upon the present split as not only a disgrace, but the ultimate ruin and destruction of the Radical Party in Tennessee. The bitterness which it helps to engender between the two factions may suit those who have no other politics than greed for office, but it must sicken the heart of every one who is laboring for the triumph of Republican principles. And we believe that no Republican may out of it, except in the selection of some unobjectionable third candidate, like Hon. HORACE MAYNARD.

THE POTATO MARKET.—Potatoes of nearly all kinds are a drug in the market in this vicinity. Farmers complain that they are hardly worth bringing to market. At Port Edward prices are ranging from 30 to 40 cents per bushel, and some varieties are not salable at any price. At the Hudson (Wis.) starch mills they are bringing 10 cents a bushel, and are not wanted even at that price, as they have at least 7,000 bushels on hand now. Similar reports are received from all quarters. The potato speculators are very much distressed at the state of the market.—Troy Whig, June 4.

As soon as an article proporting to be of utility has been tested and its merits indorsed by public opinion, unprincipled parties endeavor to deceive dark defenseless patrons by offering an unlabelling a spurious article. Before these lines were given for all diseases of the throat and lungs, cod liver oil was freely administered for the chills. At length HONEYDEW'S STORACIN BITTERS hit the event, and an entire revolution of healing was inaugurated. The beneficial effects of this valuable cordial were so great, that the demand for internal application was so great, that it could not be supplied in enlightened age has conferred them. There have been many imitations, but none have been equal to the genuine article. While HONEYDEW has proved a blessing to thousands, who owe to it their restoration to health, he has amassed a fortune. Beware of imitations. Ask for HONEYDEW'S STORACIN BITTERS. REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

Yesterday there were no sales. The day was a quiet one both in and out of town. To-day nothing will be done. Auctioneers are resting for a day or two, but will commence again next week, and will present to the public a variety of property in the City and country.

On Tuesday, at the Exchange, Messrs. A. J. BLEECKER, SON & Co. have an important sale, consisting of about nineteen acres of land, on "Kingsland Manor," adjoining Rutherford Park, N. J. No land in that part of Jersey is more suitable for subdivision into villa sites and city plots. A railroad runs on one side of it, and on the other is the land of the Rutherford Park Association. It is but seven miles from New-York; is situated one mile south of the Rutherford Station, on the New-York and Erie Railroad, lying between the Hackensack and Passaic Rivers, and is only one hour's drive from the city by Paterson Plank-road from Hoboken, or by Newark and Belleville Turnpike from Jersey City, and only forty minutes from foot of Chambers-street by New-York and Erie Railroad; seventeen local trains each way daily. The proposed Morris and Essex and Montclair Railroads will run close to the property. The ground is high, dry and healthy, gradually rolling, and is from 100 to 150 feet above tide-water. The soil is a rich sandy loam, especially adapted to fruit and garden vegetables; the water is pure, soft and cold, and the surroundings are all first-class. An avenue is now nearly completed to this property from Newark, a distance of only 4½ miles, and application has been made for a charter for a horse railroad to run on this avenue. From the highest point the views are very fine. On the east can be seen Sandy Hook and the Hudson River to the Palisades, and on the west from Ramapo Mountain south forty miles.

On Wednesday the same firm have what promises to be one of the most attractive sales of the season. No effort will be spared to make it a great success. The property embraces 275 acres in Washington Park, at Scarsdale Station, on the Harlem Railroad, and is the first sale of the kind attempted on the line of the Harlem Road. The property is much finer than is usually offered at auction. It is in a quiet, aristocratic neighborhood, built up on every side by gentlemen of the highest respectability, who occupy their pleasant residences the whole year round. The Park lies at the station, on both sides of the railroad and of Bronx River, and both are in full view of almost every villa site. It is unsurpassed for beauty, soil, water and natural growth of its trees by any portion of Westchester County, and the location and surroundings are remarkable for health. It is in every way suited to gentlemen of moderate means and refined tastes, who desire to build homes where their neighbors and associates will be all of a class equal to and of similar ideas with themselves. In its general appearance it is not unlike Llewellyn Park, which has long been known as a place of beauty and refinement; and even greater care has been used in finishing that park will be used in completing this.

The conditions of sale forbid all drinking-houses, manufacturing and other objectionable establishments. The immediate neighborhood is of the best character, with elegant and valuable country seats near the Park. Its central position places it within easy drives of Yonkers, Hastings, Dobb's Ferry and Irvington, on the Hudson River, and Mamaroneck and New-Rochelle on the Sound. A direct road seventy feet wide from the centre of this Park to Hastings, has been dedicated and surveyed, and will speedily be constructed. It will cross Central-avenue at a distance of 400 yards from the Park. White Plains lies to the north three and a half miles; Mt. Vernon to the southeast four miles, and Jerome Park nine miles by Central-avenue to the south. A spacious and beautiful granite gothic mansion, containing twenty-four rooms and all the modern improvements, together with an excellent farm-house, three barns and three smaller buildings, will also be sold. It is but nineteen miles distant from this City by railroad, and fourteen passenger trains stop at Scarsdale Station daily. To those who contemplate purchasing country homes, this sale presents features worthy of special attention. Maps and full particulars may be had at the auctioneers' office, No. 37 Cedar-street. The sale will be absolute, and without reserve. Tickets will be furnished to those desiring to purchase, and refreshments will be provided on the ground.

The success which has attended the sales of all really desirable property about this city has extended to Staten Island, and it is not improbable that some of the large landowners on that beautiful spot may in time be disposed to part with a few acres of their cherished grounds. On both the north and south shores are several tracts which might be cut up to great advantage, and which, built up and improved by proper parties, would add to the already numerous attractions of the island. Public attention being now directed to it, many there are who would like to buy, but lack the opportunity; if one were offered, there can scarcely be a doubt that it would be eagerly improved. The property is so near to New-York, so easy of communication, and so singularly free from nuisances and objectionable establishments, as make itself, as soon as thoroughly understood, very popular. The society is good, the improvements many, the spirit of progress fully awakened, and it needs but one or two public sales, which would introduce New-Yorkers to the island, where they might see and know its beauties for themselves, to bring the property in great demand. Our foreign citizens—Germans from the far-famed Rhine, Scotchmen from their bonnie hills, Frenchmen from their sunny land, and Irishmen from their dear green isle—flock to it on Sundays and holidays, to feast their eyes on its beauties and drink in a supply of its pure strong air to last them during the coming week of toil and labor. They see about them many points which remind them of their dear homes far away, and for the time are happy. Many of the better class have purchased grounds and built themselves fine residences, and more are continually joining them. Our own people are there in goodly numbers, and their villas, mansions and cottages will compare favorably with any in the land. Let one or more of the old residents imbibe a little of the spirit of Young America, cut up a tract or two of their best land, and offer it at auction, and, while they will in all human probability make a good bargain for themselves, they will be doing a benefit to the entire island.

REAL ESTATE AT AUCTION.

J. THOMSON JR., AUCTIONEER.

BY JOHNSON & MILLER.

ABSOLUTE AUCTION SALE,

ON TUESDAY, JUNE 8, 1869,

AT 12 o'clock, on the premises, "THE MANHATTAN FARM," at Greenville, Bergen Hills and VAN WICK AVE., at the junction of South Blvd., Long Island and Brooklyn City Railroads, 5 miles from City Hall, New-York; and 1 mile from Newark, N. J.

60 SPLENDID BUILDING LOTS,

All finely situated on level gravel, tree lined roads and accessible to the City by the cars, omnibuses and accommodation, and at prices so low that all may easily procure a home of their own.

There is probably no property in the vicinity of the City more advantageously located than the "Manhattan Farm," from its different railroads stop opposite to and skirt its boundaries, affording constant communication with the metropolis at all hours of the day and night, while the natural scenery is such that every lot will bear inspection; none who attend the sale will be disappointed.

The following features will characterize this sale:

EVERY LOT OFFERED WILL BE SOLD AB-SOLUTELY WITHOUT LIMIT, ten per cent. of the gross proceeds of the sale will be expended in erecting a depot and improving the streets. A free lunch will be served, with the permission of the Station. The grounds will be opened over the South Side Railroad to the ground.

HOW TO GO.—On the morning of the sale stop on the Jersey City Ferry-boat, which will leave at 10 o'clock A. M., or the top of Grand-st. stage time, cross over to South-street, Williamsburg, and there take South Side Railroad to the property. Time from New-York, 45 minutes.

For maps and free tickets apply to JOHNSON & MILLER, No. 3 Nassau-st., New-York.

VALUABLE ESTATE IN NEWPORT, R. I.

In the Circuit Court.—Bassett vs. Baggott et al.—Pursuant to a decree of the Circuit Court of Newport County, R. I., I will offer for sale at the Auction Room, Chamber-st., S. S. O. at 11 o'clock A. M., ON MONDAY, the 14th day of June next, all that piece of land with the buildings thereon, situated on the south side of Bay-st., in the City of Newport and the district of Rhode Island, and known as the "Bull House," being the estate in land in fee of which Thomas Bull died seized in fee, and which was set off to his widow, Mrs. Sarah Bull, in dower, and which is bounded as follows: Beginning at the south side of Bay-st., at the corner of land of Tall, thence south 65 deg. East, and at the land of R. G. Ingersoll, 127 feet, thence to a stone bound at the street and alley, with Mr. Ingersoll, thence Northwest, containing 16 rods, with the street in front.

The situation is well known to be one of the best in Newport for private residence, and is surrounded by fine shade trees.

The conditions of sale will be one-half cash and the balance on a credit of one year, to be secured by bond of the purchaser and a mortgage of the premises, the buildings to be kept insured and policy assigned, or all cash, at the option of the purchaser.

Purchaser to pay for recording deed and stamps.

J. V. GRIFFING, U. S. Marshal, Clerk of Circuit Court.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

OFFICE OF CLERK OF COMMON COUNCIL, CITY OF NEW-YORK, May 28, 1869.

PUBLIC NOTICE.—THE UNDERSIGNED, Clerk of the Common Council, hereby gives notice that the Common Council has fixed the compensation of the City of New-York for the year 1869, pursuant to the provisions of the Act of Legislature, and the varied Commissioners of Government which represent the City and County of New-York, and the officers of the several charitable, educational, religious, scientific and other institutions in this City, duly organized by any charter or act of incorporation, and having commissioners of the respective departments and institutions under their charge as may be of advantage to the public, or are in any manner specifically contained in the "Corporation Manual," for 1869.

In compiling the work, it is absolutely necessary that the statistical and other information contained in the "Manual" of County Government and the almost innumerable other and private charitable and other institutions of this City should be strictly reliable and authentic. To secure this indispensable requisite, the Commissioners of Public Charities and Correction, the City and County officials and the officers of such institutions are hereby respectfully solicited.

An early response is particularly desired.

JOSEPH SHANNON,
Clerk Common Council.

Address JOSEPH SHANNON, Clerk Common Council, No. 6 City Hall, New-York City, Interest "For the Manual."

WEST POINT.

Examinations of the Examinations on Military Law—Anticipated Visit of the President—The Cadets Executing at Siege Batteries.

From Our Own Correspondent.

WEST POINT, Friday, June 4, 1869.

There has been very little excitement at this resort since my last letter. The annual examination is progressing daily from 9 A. M. to 2 P. M., but is becoming very monotonous except to those directly interested in the result. The cadet festivities will be fully arranged next week, and then an enjoyable time may be expected by the Summer tourists who are stopping here, and whose numbers are continually increasing.

PREPARATIONS FOR THE BOAT RACE.

Preparations are in progress for the boat race between the cadets, which will be the chief feature of interest to-morrow afternoon. In the evening the "soldier lads" will probably give an informal hop at the West Point Hotel. All that is necessary to obtain for this purpose is the permission of the Superintendent, which the cadets are now endeavoring to procure. If it secure it will doubtless be attended by all the young ladies who are sojourning here, and will be a pleasant event.

THE PRESIDENT'S VISIT.

The expected arrival of President GRANT has become the subject of discussion among the officers; but it is thought that he will make a stealthy march on the Academy, according to his usual custom. He will be welcomed by a salute of twenty-one guns when it becomes known that he is here.

EXAMINATION IN MILITARY LAWS.

To-day the examination in Military laws was continued in the Library by Colonel PARSONS, concluding with a recitation by a portion of the second, and all of the third and fourth sections, as follows:

Second Section—Jacob A. Augur, Duties of a Judge Advocate of General Court-Martial; Franklin Yeaton, Laws of Sieges and Blockades; Worth Osgood, Field Officers' Court; Wm. J. Reese, Execution of Sentence of Court-Martial.

Third Section—Wm. Gerhard, Arrest and Confinement; Bradon, Charges and Specifications; Thomas, challenges; Bockwell, Articles of War on Mutiny and Sedition and Striking a Superior Officer; Ray, Courts of Inquiry; Smallwood, Martial and Military Law.

Fourth Section—Leggett, Challenges to Members of Court-Martial; Mason, Execution of Sentence; Bacon, Field Officers' Court.

SIEGE BATTERY PRACTICE.

After the termination of the examination for to-day, the cadets were exercised in siege battery practice, under command of Lieutenant HOSMER. They fired at objects at a distance of 1,200 yards, which they performed with remarkable accuracy. Rifled cannon were used. The firing was witnessed by a large party of pleasure-seekers from Brooklyn, who came here on the excursion boat. The reverberations of the shell explosions were very loud, and caused the clouds overhanging Cro' Nest to break, and pour down the watery element.

The Maryland Colored Convention.

The Convention of colored men of Maryland, which was held in Baltimore on Tuesday, adopted over forty resolutions, and nominated Judge Hugh L. Bond for Governor. Of its action the Baltimore American says:

"Some of the resolutions we consider very injudicious, one going so far as to nominate a candidate for Governor. As our colored fellow-citizens have not the right to vote at this time, and may not for years to come, and the next Gubernatorial election does not take place until November, 1871, we think their action rather premature. When they have the ballot, which we hope may be at an early day, then it will be time enough for them to nominate candidates, or have a voice in their selection, and any attempt to dictate who shall be voted for, until that time, shows a lack of discretion, and is calculated to injure their cause."

THE FREEMASONS.

Meeting of the Grand Lodge—Fourth Day's Session—Report Against Alterations in the Ritual—Distinguished Visitors and a Banquet—Closing of the Grand Lodge.

The Grand Lodge of the State of New-York, reassembled at 9 o'clock yesterday morning. The R. W. and Rev. R. L. SCHOONMAKER opened the proceedings with an appropriate prayer.

SECTARIANISM IN THE RITUAL.

The majority report on this subject was read to the Grand Lodge, and an appended resolution presented to the effect that it is inexpedient to make any alteration in the ancient Masonic ritual, although due regard was to be had to the religious feelings of dissenting brethern.

The M. W. ISAAC PHILIPS read a minority report, signed by himself only, and recommending that certain passages and allusions in the secret ritual be dropped.

The majority report was adopted, after considerable discussion.

RELATIONS WITH THE GRAND ORIENT OF FRANCE.

The third resolution appended to the report of the Committee on Foreign Correspondence in relation to severing all Masonic relations between the Grand Lodge and the Grand Orient of France, until the latter shall cease to recognize a so-called Supreme Grand Council which has invaded the jurisdiction of Louisiana, and claimed to have the power of conferring the Ninetieth degree of Masonry, was taken up and considered.

Various amendments were offered, but the resolution as given above was finally adopted.

PRESENTATION.

The R. W. JOHN W. ARTHUR presented M. W. STEPHEN H. JOHNSON the jewel of a Past Grand Master, on behalf of the Grand Lodge, in doing so he paid a high tribute to the M. W. Brother as Grand Master, as a Mason, and as a man, and expressed his pleasure at being the medium by which it was presented. M. W. Brother JOHNSON returned thanks in a feeling manner. He said he should ever preserve that beautiful jewel, and wishes it to be handed down as an heir-loom to his children. He owed much to Masonry, and the few remaining years of his life he would devote to the interests of the Craft.

DISTINGUISHED VISITORS.

The R. W. and Hon. RICHARD VAUX, Grand Master of Pennsylvania, and the R. W. Brother PERKINS, Senior Grand Warden of the same State, were admitted and introduced by M. W. ROBERT D. HOLMES. They were seated with the grand lodge.

The R. W. Brother SACKRITER, representative of the Grand Lodge of Frankfort-on-the-Main, was presented by R. W. JOHN L. LEWIS, and received the grand honors.

BANQUET TO VISITORS.

An elegant banquet was given by the Master and Brethren of the St. Nicholas Lodge to the R. W. and Hon. RICHARD VAUX, and R. W. SAMUEL C. PERKINS, of the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania. A number of invited guests were present, including M. W. STEPHEN H. JOHNSON, Former D. HOLMES, JOHN EVANS, R. W. John H. ATKINSON, R. W. and Rev. F. G. RYRIE and many others. Numerous brief and interesting speeches were made, and toasts and sentiments drunk expressive of the utmost harmony and good feeling.

AFTERNOON SESSION—THE PEOPLE'S COLLEGE.

The Committee on Hall and Asylum reported in reference to the People's College at Havana, N. Y., that it appeared the property was greatly dismembered. There were judgments against it to a large amount, and claims to an unknown extent. However advisable it might be to the Grand Lodge to take it, if it could be obtained without incumbrance, the Committee could not recommend the Grand Lodge to take any action favoring its acquisition at present.

A resolution to this effect appended to the report was accordingly adopted.

FINANCE.

The Finance Committee's report was then presented. The Committee recommended the usual appropriations. In addition to those of an ordinary character, the Committee recommended the appropriation of $100 for a portrait of the late Grand Secretary R. W. JAMES HERMAN, to be the property of the Grand Lodge. The Committee further recommended that proper jewels and aprons for the officers of the Grand Lodge be purchased.

MUSICAL PORTIONS OF THE RITUAL.

A resolution was offered by R. W. CHARLES B. FOSTER, that a permanent and standing invitation be extended to St. Cecile Lodge, No. 603, of this City, requesting them to furnish hereafter at and appropriate Masonic music at the opening ceremonies of each annual communication of this Grand Lodge, which was adopted.

ADJOURNMENT.

The Committee on Constitution and Laws reported on all matters which had been referred to them, and their reports were adopted, and after some further routine business the M. W. Grand Lodge was closed in ample form.

Terrible Night at Hunter's Point—Drunken Rowdies Tear Up a Railroad Track.

On Monday evening two men named MCNALLEY and KELLAHAN, employed on the Flushing car, proceeded to Dutch Kills to have a spree. They drank freely on the road. At Dutch Kills they met MARTIN MARROW, just another man who is a driver on the Hunter's Point and Astoria road. An argument ensued as to the relative merits of the two roads, and words soon turned to blows. The Green-point men succeeded in defeating the others, and maltreated them in a very shameful manner. They then commenced tearing up the railroad track, and destroyed nearly a mile of the road. They also damaged the bridge over Dutch Kill Creek to such an extent that the trains on the Flushing Railroad were considerably delayed yesterday. At about 10:30 o'clock at night all the parties met again at a drinking saloon on Continental-avenue. Words were exchanged, fisticuffs followed, and the whole neighborhood was aroused with the uproar. MCNALLEY was dragged into the street, where he was set upon by a number of MARROW's friends, and in a horrible manner. MCNALLEY and KELLAHAN finally broke away from the crowd and were pelted over the Hunter's Point Bridge with stones and brickbats. It is said that KELLAHAN in his fright ran into Newtown Creek, and has not since been heard of. Warrants have been issued for arrest of the parties principally concerned.

THE TURF.

The Union Course Trotting Meeting—Fourth and Last Day.

Yesterday was the fourth and concluding day of the Spring trotting meeting on the Union Course, which has been the most successful ever held on Long Island. Besides the two regular purses given by the proprietors, there was a match for $1,000, mile heats, in harness, which added to the interest of the day's proceedings.

The weather was favorable, for although heavy clouds obscured the sun, the rain fortunately kept off during the racing. There was a good attendance of spectators, and the betting was unusually good and productive of excitement.

The first event was the match for $1,000, mile heats, three in five, in harness, between Dr. OGLE's b. g. Red Rover, and Mr. LOVELL's b. g. Young Commodore. The latter won in two heats, Red Rover being driven in the third heat. Time—2:43, 2:45.

The second race was for a purse of $600, mile heats, in harness, for all horses that never beat 2:40 in harness. Of the eight entries the following four started: DAN. MACE's b. m. Lydia Thompson; A. PATTERSON's br. s. Manhattan; M. ROBINSON's b. g. Twist; and E. WARD's b. g. Trenton. Lydia Thompson was the favorite against the field at the start, but her backers this time were completely out of their reckoning, for Manhattan, admirably driven by ALEC PATTERSON, one of the most reliable and steadiest of trotting trainers, won the race in three straight heats; Lydia taking second money and Twist the century for third horse. Time—2:34½, 2:32, 2:37½.

The third event was a trot for a purse of $1,000, mile heats, in harness, for horses that never beat 2:30 in harness. The four horses entered were D. MACE's b. g. Western New-York, F. J. NODINE's b. m. Belle of Brooklyn, JAMES D. MCMANN's blk. m. Cora, and M. RODER's b. g. Little Fred. The last-named horse was drawn, and Cora proved the winner of the other three. Belle of Brooklyn won the first and second heats so easily that $100 to $5 was laid on her for the race, but she died away completely in the third heat, and the black mare Cora won the three succeeding heats and race. We give the time on the

The American Jockey Club Spring Meeting—The Races To-day.

The Jerome Park races commence to-day, and from the large fields of horses engaged in the various stakes, a good day's racing may be looked for. The hurdle race is the first event on the card, and we understand there will be six or seven horses engaged in it, but although the entries closed yesterday afternoon, we have not been favored with a copy of them. For the Fordham Stakes Handicap, the following are the probable starters: Bonnie Jean, 4 years, 116 pounds; E. B. Connolly, 5 years, 116 pounds; Metoric, 5 years, 115 pounds; Gustavus, Jr., 5 years, 114 pounds, (doubtful;) Hera, 5 years, 109 pounds; Wing, 4 years, 103 pounds; Corsican, 4 years, 100 pounds, (doubtful;) Kitten, 3 years, 104 pounds; La Polka, 4 years, 104 pounds; Uncle Vic colt, 4 years, 100 pounds; Bonnie Jean, 4 years, 100 pounds. Of this lot the winner is likely to turn up in Bonnie, La Polka, Hera or one of Mr. RUNKNSON's three entries. The third race is the Belmont Stakes for three-year olds, and will have eight or ten runners. The Members' Cup, gentlemen riders, is the fourth race, and the sweepstakes for two-year olds, winds up the day's sport, which will assuredly prove a highly interesting one.

Sale of Thoroughbred Yearlings at Jerome Park.

To-day Major BARNES will sell by public auction on the course, three very highbred yearlings. The first is the chestnut colt Tammany, by Lexington, dam Ida Harkness, by Glencoe, engaged in several important two and three-year-old stakes at Jerome Park and Saratoga. The second is Monrit, a chestnut colt by imported Australian, out of the dam by Idlewild; also heavily engaged. The third is Windpuff, a gray colt by Vandal, out of Pance, engaged in several two and three-year-old stakes.

The Outrage on a Young Girl at Jersey City—The Offender Sentenced to Ten Years' Imprisonment.

The trial of WILLIAM C. ALLENCOURT, alias Barney Devine, for rape committed April 25, last, on Miss ADELAIDE BENNETT, of Grove-street, Jersey City, was proceeded with yesterday at Hudson County Court of Sessions. The defence attempted to impeach the testimony of Miss BENNETT, but it utterly broke down. Judge RANDOLPH delivered a careful and able charge, and the jury, after twenty minutes' absence, rendered a verdict of guilty, and the prisoner was sentenced to ten years in the State Prison at Trenton. The verdict and sentence were generally just. The prisoner's wife, although she had been cruelly treated and deserted by him, appeared greatly affected on hearing the sentence. He appeared perfectly unconcerned.

City Casualties.

At 9:20 o'clock last evening, WM. J. KEATING, a trackman employed on the Third-avenue Railroad, attempting to get on a car at Eighty-sixth-street, was thrown down and seriously injured.

JAMES WALLACE, of No. 661 Third-avenue, attempting to jump off the New-Haven train last evening at Fifty-fourth-street and Fourth-avenue, while it was going at a high rate of speed, was flung heavily to the ground, dislocating his shoulder and cutting his head and face severely. He was taken to his home.....BARNEY CUMMINGS, a laborer, fell off a Second-avenue car last evening near Forty-seventh-street, and was seriously injured about the head. He was removed to Bellevue Hospital.....MICHAEL HALTON, of No. 321 West Thirty-sixth-street, fell in Thirty-seventh-street, near Ninth-avenue, and was so severely cut about the head that he was removed to Bellevue Hospital.

Mt. Vernon—Village Matters.

The new President and Trustees of the village assembled, a few evenings ago, and organized for business. After the appointment of the usual standing committees, President MARTINE took occasion to make some remarks on the state of village affairs, and spoke in severe terms of economy against the neglect of a former Board for allowing the Collector of Taxes to hold office for the term of two years without making proper returns, and finally in absconding with about $6,000 which had been paid to him for taxes. He also alluded to the fact that the members of the last Board had expended all the money which had been appropriated for the improvements of the streets and avenues, and left some of them in a dangerous condition, which the new Board was unable to do anything with for want of funds.

AN ACCIDENTAL HOMICIDE.

A Boy Shoots a Shoemaker while he is at Work.

Violent deaths resulting from carelessness in the handling of dangerous weapons have lately been alarmingly frequent, and the most flagrant case of this character occurred last evening, in the Eleventh Ward, a little before 6 o'clock.

FREDERICK HAHN, a German shoemaker, 21 years of age, was seated quietly at work on his bench, before the open door of his shop, No. 219 East Fourth-street. Intent upon his work, he never lifted his eyes, and did not see a party of boys upon the sidewalk who were equally intent upon their amusement of examining a small single-barrelled pistol in the possession of CHARLES GOTCHER. Suddenly the weapon was discharged in the latter's grasp, and the ball dashing direct through the open door, struck HAHN; and passing through the right breast, he fell from the bench and almost instantly expired.

The boys were appalled by this dreadful result, and fled at once; but GOTCHER returned almost immediately to the scene of his carelessness and surrendered himself to Officer NUGENT, of the Eleventh Precinct, who had been attracted to the spot by the commotion. The officer conveyed the boy to the Eleventh Precinct Station-house, where he was locked up to await an inquest by Coroner KERNAN, who was notified of the tragedy. The remains of the man who thus met an untimely end were also taken in charge by the Police, to await the inquest, which will be held this morning.

THE WILLIAMSBURG HOMICIDE.

The Verdict—Waters Exonerated from Blame.

The Coroner's inquest in the case of ISAAC S. WATERS, who on Tuesday last shot his brother-in-law, JEREMIAH STRICKLAND, in South Fifth-street, was concluded last evening, when the jury rendered the following verdict: "That JEREMIAH STRICKLAND came to his death by pistol shots while in the hands of ISAAC S. WATERS, and that the said ISAAC S. WATERS was acting in self defence, and we therefore exonerate him from all responsibility, believing that he was justifiable in so doing, he fearing that his own life was in jeopardy at the time."

LABOR MOVEMENTS.

Blue Stone Cutters' and Flaggers' Association.

The regular quarterly meeting of the Blue Stone Cutters' and Flaggers' Association was held last evening at their hall No. 216 West Thirty-sixth-street, the President, J. J. BERGEN, in the chair. There was a very large attendance. A delegation from the potterymen now on strike against a proposed reduction of wages at the Trenton Potteries, New-Jersey, attended the meeting and asked for a grant from the Association fund in support of the striking fund.

A resolution was passed granting them the sum of $100, but was ruled out of order by the President, on the ground that the rules of the Association provided that no grant of money should be made to any party taken out of the trade by their own fault. An animated discussion followed, and it was finally resolved that the question should stand over for the present.

The Secretary, Mr. P. FITZGIBBON, read the usual quarterly report, which showed the Association to be in a very flourishing condition, and that great progress had been made perfecting its organization. Eight new members were elected and a number proposed for election at the next monthly meeting. The officers of the Association were also reflected for the ensuing year.

Iron Moulders' Union No. 25.

A meeting of this trades organization was held last evening at the Germania Assembly Rooms, No. 206 Bowery, Mr. J. CARR presiding, for the purpose of hearing Mr. W. H. SYLVIS, the President of the International Union. There was a large attendance.

Mr. SYLVIS stated that he had been making a tour through the States, and wished to give the members of Union No. 25 the benefit of his experiences. He spoke hopefully of the South and the progress made since the war in the foundry trade, and gave detailed descriptions of the various societies in Portsmouth, Wilmington, Cairo, Knoxville, Savannah, Memphis, Montgomery, Augusta, Mobile, Charleston, Nashville and New-Orleans. Of New-Orleans he said that when he went there he found the strongest foundery in the States; but matters are now improving there. At Memphis the understanding between employers and employed is perfect, the masters associating with the men and discussing with them questions of trade and wages on a system of perfect equality. The trade is flourishing in Mobile, but backward owing to the want of iron, that metal costing there at present $60 a ton. On the whole, trade everywhere is looking up, and Unions have been formed in every place where foundries are run, and are becoming a great success. In conclusion, Mr. SYLVIS urged the Association to unite and to avoid those petty differences which so often militate against the workingman's cause. The employers' strength is division, and the employés', union and organization.

Resignation of Johnson, the Would-be Assassin.

GEORGE JOHNSON, alias Dick Berry, the man who some time ago attempted the assassination of ALLAN PINKERTON, the Chicago detective, and who was recently arrested at Cincinnati, convicted to Detroit and subsequently escaped from jail at that place, was recaptured at Windsor, Canada, a day or two since. Shortly after his rearrest he confessed that other parties were implicated with him in his assault upon Mr. PINKERTON, and that they prompted him to take the course he did.

The Eighteenth Ward Shooting Affray.

The victims of the shooting affray in First-avenue on Thursday evening were both suffering considerably, according to the latest accounts. Mr. THOMAS S. BRENNAN, Warden of Bellevue Hospital, said at a late hour last evening there was no hope that RICHARD GUERDES would recover, and he was failing every hour. CORNELIO was somewhat easier, and would probably recover.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

New-York.

Major PETER BOWE, formerly connected with the Tammany Regiment, and who was well and favorably known as a most efficient officer, has been appointed by Sheriff O'BRIEN to be Deputy Sheriff in place of JAMES J.
